Open Convention on Steamer for Nantasket After High Mass at Cathedral.

HEAR BRILLIANT SERMON

Today's Program of Visiting Knights of Columbus

A. M.
9:00—Solemn high mass at Cathedral of the Holy Cross.
10:30—Take trolley cars at rear of Cathedral for Rowes Wharf.
11:00—Steamer leaves Rowes Wharf for harbor trip.
Noon—Opening of Supreme Convention.
P. M.
2:00—Steamer lands at Nantasket.
4:30—New England shore dinner at Paragon Park.
8:30—Fireworks display.
10:00—Steamer leaves Nantasket for Boston.

A great congregation was present in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross this forenoon at the solemn high mass, which formally opened the exercises of the national convention of the Knights of Columbus.

Rt. Rev. Monsignor Supple, D. D., of Roxbury, was the celebrant; the Rev. James J. McCarthy of Dorchester, deacon; the Rev. James N. Supple of Charlestown, sub-deacon, and the Rev. Peter C. Quinn of Jamaica Plain master of ceremonies.

The music of the mass was superbly rendered by the K. of C. choral society, recently organized by Pio de Luca, director of the Cathedral choir.

Bishop Anderson's Sermon.

The Rt. Rev. Joseph G. Anderson was the speaker. His subject was "The Call to Knighthood."

In the course of his impressive discourse Bishop Anderson spoke as follows:

There is one great question and problem that perplexes the world today and in which the church is deeply interested because it affects not only the welfare of her own members but the general welfare of society. It is the social question. This is the great question that has so fixed the attention of the world and so stirred the souls of men as to cause the social unrest so universally felt throughout the world. The desire and effort of men to better and improve their social conditions, so long ignored and abused by the powerful and rich in every land, have so fired men with frenzied passion that they have been captivated with the program and principles of reform presented to them by Socialism and by the methods of physical force offered by anarchy.

Benefits of Reform.

The material benefits to be derived from these efforts of reform have caused them not only to ignore religion as an element in the solution of their problems, but to consider it as a barrier and a hindrance to the success of their plans. This hatred and contempt for the Church and Christ have been due to the principles taught the struggling masses by such theories as the descent of man from the ape and the materialistic conception of history, which latter destroys all notion of God—the soul—eternity and religion. Such teachings have left men with only one thought and one aim in life, namely, this world and all the pleasures and

WILD ORANG OUTANG CAPTURED BY 10 MEN AFTER FIERCE FIGHT

Tin San, the ape that escaped from the steamer Nemecrie, snapped after it was finally subdued and securely chained.

Trap Short Weight Ice Man in Back Bay

Three Deputies Hide Behind Chest in Beacon Street Home.

Edwin L. White of No. 408 Beacon street suspected that his iceman was not giving him full weight, and complained to Sealer of Weights and Measures Charles B. Woolley.

Deputies Sikora, Sweeney and Ryan last Saturday lay in wait near the ice chest in Mr. White's house.

Archie Spaulding, driver for the Boston Ice Company, put a chunk of ice in the icebox and charged up "two hundred pounds. The three deputies weighed the ice, and they say it weighed only 151½ pounds—sixty-eight and a half pounds short. Deputy Sweeney says Spaulding admitted he did not weigh it.

Spaulding was summoned to appear in court next Thursday.

Helps Couple Over 5-Day Marriage Law

Henry L. Palmer Hiltyer of Topeka, Kansas, accompanied by his housekeeper, Mary Ella Walker, appealed to Judge Kennedy in Newton Police Court to help them over the five days' residence law in order that they might marry without delay. Judge Kennedy granted the request. Hiltyer said he was a loan agent.

Girl, 4, Shows New Skin on Birthday

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Caroline Day, just four, entertained child friends at Jamaica Hospital by sitting up and showing the new skin patched on her body after she had been badly burned in a bonfire.

Fr. John's Medicine Guaranteed
Body builder that heals tissues and lungs. **

Tin San, the runaway orang-outang, was caught in Chelsea today, but it took ten men to lick him.

It was not until he had been enveloped in a bag, bound with wire and fastened with a chain that the powerful orang-outang quit scrapping.

Later, when he was released, with a chain and collar on, and was fed milk and peanuts, Tin San calmed down a bit and took life easier.

Tin San was captured in the paper stock building of B. Feinberg Sons Company at Winthrop street and Pearl streets, Chelsea. He nearly wrecked the room where the final battle took place.

The simian escaped Saturday from the British steamer Nemerie at Mystic wharf. The entire harbor front searched for him, cautiously. Captain McLean of the Nemerie offered a reward for his capture.

Is Fined $40 for Short Weight Ice

George B. Griffin, a Wakefield ice dealer, was in Malden Police Court today on the charge of giving short weight ice. The complainant was Inspector J. J. Cummings of the State Sealer of Measures office. It was charged that Griffin gave forty pounds for seventy-five on one occasion and forty-five pounds for seventy-five on another. Griffin was fined $20 on each count.

Will Demand Probe of 'Bank Conspiracy'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The Democrats of the House Banking and Currency Committee took a final vote late today on sending the administration currency bill to the caucus. When the measure gets to caucus, Representative Neely will demand an investigation of the McAdoo charges of a "bank conspiracy." The caucus, called for August 13, probably will last several days.

'TERROR' IS TRACED IN WOODS

PLAN FOR NIGHT SEARCH

A new effort to capture the wild man who has terrorized Weston and Waltham was begun today by the police of those towns and the Metropolitan Park force.

The Waltham officers are watching a palace today and hope to capture the wild man.

Tootell, Wilbur Peddlebury, a Waltham High School athlete, will lead a posse of twenty men, members of the Bera Lambda Boat Club, in an attempt to capture the terror.

They plan to beat the strip of woods that lies between the road and the river from Waltham to Weston. And in Weston and Waltham they are anxious that men shall come out and help the search to rid the neighborhood of the wild man who has terrorized the women and children.

Seen By Conductor.

The wild man travels about without clothing. He is five feet six inches tall, with a moustache, black hat, stout, and between forty and fifty years old.

John Cotton, a conductor on the Middlesex and Boston, is the latest to see him. Last night as his car was bowling toward Waltham he looked back and saw the freak skip across the road almost on all fours, dive into the bushes and drop out of sight on the side of the road toward the river.

The children in the Roberts section are terrorized, and the women stick very close to their homes. Everett J. Leavitt, an employee of the Quincy Cold Storage Warehouse, said today:

"My two children won't stir out without me or their mother, and Mrs. Leavitt is a little nervous herself. The wild man has absolutely terrorized the section."

Sergeant Clabson of the Metropolitan police confesses his forces are baffled. He says:

Escapes Pursuers.

Several times I led parties to the spot where the wild man had been seen. In one case we arrived two minutes after he disappeared. We put a cordon about that patch of brush and searched every foot of it. He had simply disappeared—vanished into thin air."

Mrs. Frank Steele of River street, Weston, saw the man a few days ago. She is the only one who has seen him at any distance from the water. He appears to like to hang around the river banks and roam through the Charles River reservation.

Superintendent Forbush of the Waltham pumping station today reported having seen the wild man.

Edward Bowler, a Waltham grocer, is another who saw the wild man. He was driving his delivery wagon along the river road when the wild man appeared for a moment—then disappeared.

Two Injured When Auto Turns Turtle

GREENLAND, N. H., Aug. 5.—William Bryant and Samuel Owen, both of Greenland, N. H., were injured here today when their automobile turned turtle near the Brayden Farm. Bryant received a lacerated scalp and Owen cuts on his right knee. They were taken to the Portsmouth Hospital.

$40,000 for Girl if 'Old Maid' Ten Years

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The will of Mrs. Fanny Borkheck, filed for probate in the Surrogate's Court provides that her only unmarried daughter, Jeanie, shall receive $40,000 on May 24, 1923, if she at that time is still single. The girl is now in her early twenties. Mrs. Borkheck was opposed to early marriages.

DANGER OF DISASTER, COLE SAYS

Fire Commissioner Declares Boston Faces Peril of Great Holocaust.

URGES NEW INSPECTION

Fire Commissioner Charles H. Cole amazed the legislative committee investigating building conditions today when at the public hearing he said:

"No 10 per cent of the buildings in Boston in which women and children are employed could be emptied quickly in case of fire.

There is one building alone in which 3,500 women and children are employed where only one exit is kept unlocked. If a fire ever broke out there it would be a holocaust—the worst fire catastrophe the world has ever seen—an appalling loss of life.

I'm not here without a remedy to offer. My remedy is this: In the fire department there are over 1,000 men trained to know fire causes and fire prevention.

These men should be given the work of inspecting buildings, with power to enforce their recommendations, and this work should be taken out of the hands of the building department, with its unskilled inspectors.

My men are experts. They could work a vast improvement in Boston —given half a chance.

The fire hazard committee of the City Council tomorrow will give a public hearing on the question of the reduction of Boston's fire hazard through the extension of the limits within which only structures with non-inflammable exteriors may be erected. The hearing will take place in the committee room at City Hall at 4 p. m.

Asks for Three New Battleships

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—A bill providing for an emergency appropriation to begin the immediate construction of three battleships was introduced in the House today by Representative Britton of Illinois, Republican member of the Naval Affairs Committee, who asserts that the controversy with Japan and the Mexican situation makes it imperative to begin at once the building of new dreadnaughts.

Sues Boston Book Firm for $100,000

CINCINNATI, Aug. 5.—Richard G. Badger and Gordon Badger of Boston, and the Gorham Press of the same city, have been made defendants in a suit for $100,000 by David T. Smith of Louisville, Ky., filed in the U. S. court here, for alleged breach of contract in connection with the printing and publishing of manuscript by Smith.

Charges $150 Theft Aboard Steamship

Mrs. Katerina Franconeri from Piedmont, Italy, who arrived on the Red Star liner Menominee today from Antwerp, charged that a naturalized Italian woman named "Young Monday" had stolen $150 of her money she had given him to keep for her on the way over. Search was made for "Young Monday," but he had left the steamer immediately on dock-ing, as he is naturalized.

World's Navies to Open Big Canal

Greatest Sea Pageant in History Planned for Panama.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels today announced his plans to save all the world's fleets mobilize in Hampton Roads in February, 1915, and, led by the American squadron, proceed through the Panama Canal and up the west coast to San Francisco. Secretary Daniels considers that this will form a fitting opening for the Panama Canal, besides being the greatest naval pageant the world has seen.

In addition to this, Secretary Daniels plans to have the American fleet, headed by the old battleship Oregon, steam through the canal next Spring to celebrate the opening of the passageway to ships of commerce.

17 Hurt in Georgia Railroad Wreck

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 5.—A passenger train bound from Atlanta, Ga., was wrecked on the Georgia Central Railroad near Oliver today. Seven cars were derailed and seventeen persons seriously injured. A call was sent here for doctors and nurses and these were rushed on a special train. The wrecked train is known as No. 4 and carries a Birmingham, Ala., sleeper. One hundred and fifty feet of track was torn up.

"13" Omen to Miss Wilson as Bride

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Lovers of the mystic have dubbered the letters in the name of Miss Jessie Wilson's fiance, Francis B. Sayre, number thirteen. Miss Wilson will not only be the daughter of the "Lucky Thirteen President," and the thirteenth White House bride, but have as a husband a man about whose career thirteen appears an alluring halo.

Boylston Street Company Assigns

Annie F. Murch, Annie C. Sanborn and Maud E. Davenport, doing business as John J. Stevens & Company, No. 546 Boylston street, women's and children's furnishings, assigned today to William J. Miller of Boston and Charles C. Warren of Arlington.

AMAZING STORY IS REVEALED

Involves Brokers in High Finance and Whirl of Society Life.

$1,000 DINNER FEATURES

The AMERICAN today came into possession of the complete story of the disappearance of $150,000 worth of jewels from the jewel casket of Mrs. John H. Hanan of New York and Narragansett Pier.

The story is an amazing one. The jewels have had many strange journeys, finally landing in the vault of the Boston Stock Exchange house, where they now rest amid a loss of $60,000 upon them is said.

This feature of the case was told for the first time in Sunday's AMERICAN and caused a sensation. It was denied, of course, but the denials contained nothing specific, for the very good reason that the story is true. The AMERICAN has the whole story—names, dates, details.

It is a story of high finance, which involves members of the Stock Exchange, the buying and selling of a yacht, one or two thousand dollar dinners and some energetic sheriffs who demand cash. This is where the jewels come into the strange tale.

Enter the Gay Young Broker.

The jewels at the beginning of the present gay and busy Summer lay safely in the jewel casket of Mrs. Hanan. They were, or are, worth $150,000 or more. They belong to Mrs. Hanan.

Now the story harks back to State street, Boston, and concerns the doings of a bright, gay young broker, who spent more than he had or could make and then ——.

Exit broker to New York, where he begins a second money spending campaign—involving yachts, a big Rhode Island country place, valets, flocks of automobiles, gay dinners at the Hotel Lenox, Boston—and then, again sheriffs who demanded cash.

Now comes, Oppenheim-like, hurried flights to raise the money—automobiles flesh through the night, searchlights on the expensive yacht flash forth, night

Reinsch Named for Minister to China

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The nomination of Professor Paul S. Reinsch of the University of Wisconsin, to be Minister to China, was sent to the Senate today by President Wilson. It is expected that confirmation will speedily follow.

Japan Undecided Over Panama Fair

TOKIO, Aug. 5.—Inquiry here has elicited the answer that Japan's attitude regarding participation in the Panama Pacific exposition at San Francisco in 1915 is still undetermined.

It is stated that action upon the matter is conditional upon the desires of the manufacturers.

FOUR FIREMEN SAVED IN BLAZE AT SOUTH END

The three upper floors on the Plympton street side of the Badger building, a five-story brick structure at Albany, Plympton and Wareham streets, South End, were swept by a two-alarm fire early today. The damage is estimated at $100,000.

The fire was the most stubborn the firemen have had to contend with in years. A score of firemen were overcome by smoke and many had narrow escapes.

The second, third and fourth floors on the Plympton street side of the building were occupied by the Gordon Supply company, the top floor by the American Shoe Company, a branch of the United Shoe Company and the first floor by the Union Laundry Company.

R. T. Watts, manager of the Gordon Supply Company, estimated their loss at between $50,000 and $75,000. The remainder of the loss is apportioned among the American Shoe Company, the Union Laundry Company and half a dozen other concerns that sustained a loss from smoke and water.

Report Torture of American in Mexico

Story of Cooper Case Goes to State Department.

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 5.—The story of the torture to which Clarence H. Cooper, an American, was compelled to submit at the hands of Mexican bandits of Castillo's command, was forwarded to the State Department today. Cooper, acting superintendent of the Pearson lumber mills in Mexico, was cut across the throat, beaten almost insensible and forced to open the company's safe in the office at Pearson, Mexico. The bandits, the report said, obtained $3,500.

G. Turbe, an American, was held for $200 ransom.

A report from Tampico today said that Matthew Gourd, an American farmer, was lashed to a tree and forced to witness an attack on his two daughters.

Penitentiary at Culebra Is Razed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Advices from Ancon, Canal Zone, received here today, report the demolition of the famous Culebra cut penitentiary. This structure, originally erected for a lunatic, was impressed as a prison, but in October, 1911, was abandoned because it was feared the Culebra slide would break back to its walls and undermine the building.

SINGS AFTER NEWS OF DEATH AND DESERTION

Just before Mrs. Eva LaMarch, the eighteen-year-old wife of Romeo LaMarch, a Lynn barber, started to go on the stage of a Lynn moving picture house to sing the first song in her new engagement there, she was handed two letters. The first was given her by her landlady, who said it was from Mrs. LaMarch's husband. It read:

"Eva—I am tired of living like this. Since you are working and are so near home, I am going away. Here is the baby's address."

The address was added of friends in Lawrence where the LaMarches had left their baby when they moved to Lynn.

After reading the first note the young wife mechanically opened the other. It was a letter from the Lawrence people who had the baby, saying in effect:

"Dear Mrs. LaMarch, your baby which we had care of is dead."

Before Mrs. LaMarch was barely able to grasp the sad meaning of the second note her time came to go on the stage and sing. With rare courage the child wife fulfilled her part, rather than disappoint the management and audience. The name of the song she sang was:

"The curse of an Aching Heart."

After her song Mrs. LaMarch hurried to her boarding house and found her husband had left her two dollars. She started for Lawrence.

Blackburn Here with Jungle Family

Arrive on Liner Sturmfels Accompanied by Wild Beasts.

The German steamer Sturmfels from Calcutta and Ceylon, which put in here today to discharge part of her cargo, had on board Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Blackburn and an unusual family. Mr. Blackburn is an agent of the National Zoological Gardens at Washington.

When he and Mrs. Blackburn came aboard the Sturmfels at Port Said they were followed by this collection:

Two baby elephants from the Soudan, Jumbo and Jumbine.
Three camels.
Five gazelles.
Three Circassian goats.
Three baboons.
Two cheetahs.
Three lemurs.

EVELYN THAW WEARS BABY JACKET NEXT HER HEART IN DANCE

Evelyn Thaw dancing with Jack Clifford, on her return to the New York Stage.

NEW YORK, August 5.—With fond maternal superstition, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw today gave all credit for her successful vaudeville debut at Hammerstein's to the fact that, as she danced before the crowded house, she had next to her heart a tiny garment, the first jacket that her little boy, Russell Thaw, ever wore. The baby is in a nurse's care in England and while she is separated from him Mrs. Thaw has his picture and this jacket to comfort her.

When she went off the stage to her dressing room after her first appearance and while the applause of Broadway habitues and suburbanites was ringing in her ears, Mrs. Thaw smiled with delight.

In her dressing room she put one hand in the front of her shirtwaist and pulled out a small white cloth, saying:

"The act had to be all right with this talisman. This is my little boy's jacket, his first one. I wore it next to my heart when I danced in the London Hippodrome and I wear it here."

HOSTILE FLEET FOILED IN NEW YORK ATTEMPT

NEW LONDON, Aug. 5.—After an entire day and night of unsuccessful attempt to evade the big guns and searchlights of the island forts at the head of the sound the enemy, which is known on paper as the black fleet, and which is hovering about the head of Lon gisland Sound, waiting for a chance to steam down toward Gotham and pulverize some of the tall buildings of Manhatten, was a little wary today of further exposing itself.

This forenoon four of the battleship fleet appeared at a range of 10,000 yards. They opened fire upon the island forts, continued their reconnoissance for an hour and then retired toward Block Island.

From the reason that shots from the big guns came as high as $150 per, they are not to be fired, but simply thrown up into position. Smokeless powder is being fired in the smaller guns.

ASKS COURT TO BREAK B. & M. EXPRESS PACT

Claiming that the fraudulent actions of the Boston & Maine directors in connection with the road's contract with the American Express Company have resulted in the loss of $4,000,000 since 1907, Clemantine B. Wentworth of Concord, N. H., today petitioned the Superior Court at Concord for an injunction to restrain further operations under its provisions until the court could order its nullification later.

If granted the bill will break the twenty-year monopoly of transportation secured by the American Express Company of the Boston & Maine in 1907. The court also is asked to compel the express people to return the $4,000,000 alleged to have been illegally withheld from the Boston & Maine stockholders during that time.

Refuses to Muss Car for Dying Girl

"Drive On," Says Autoist When Aid Is Asked in Williamsburg.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Saying he did not wish to have the cushions of his car soiled with blood, an automobile owner in Williamsburg refused the use of his machine in conveying Mary Sees, eleven years old, to the hospital.

The girl had been knocked down by a runaway horse. She died before another automobile reached the hospital with her.

The chauffeur of the touring car was halted and the case explained to a man lolling on the cushions.

"The girl is dying. We'll have to make a quick run," he was told.

The man in the motor car removed a cigar from his lips long enough to say, "What, and muss up the car? Not much. Drive on."

'Mother' Jones Will Lead Calumet Miners

Aged Heroine of Eastern Strikes Due in Michigan Today.

CALUMET, Mich., Aug. 5.—"Mother" Jones, the aged heroine of the coal miners of the East, who has been a storm petrel for years in all the strike clashes there, is expected here today to help lead the strikers in the Calumet copper mines.

Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor has sent Walter B. Palmer of the Bureau of Labor Statistics to see if the Department of Labor can be of assistance in the settlement of the strike. The strikers remain firm.

Tetanus Kills Boy Who Lost Hands

SALISBURY BEACH, Aug. 5.—John Smith, twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Smith of Somerville, is dead at the Anna Jaques Hospital in Newburyport from lockjaw, the result of taking hold July 22 of a "live" kite wire, which had been dragged by the kite across a high-powered feed wire of the Northeastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company. The boy's hands were so badly burned that both were amputated at the hospital, but tetanus set in.

Mrs. Gould Calls for Dress Reform

Wants Women to Wage Fight Against Immodest Fashions.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Edwin Gould, returning to New York from a Western trip, placed herself on record in an interview here against immodest dress for women on the streets or at bathing beaches. "I am not in favor of freak or suggestive modes," said Mrs. Gould. "The extreme silk skirt to which objection has been taken in various parts of the country is not worn in New York by any of my friends. Nor do I know any one who appears at bathing beaches in one-piece suits such as Chicago has forbidden.

"I expect to see a revulsion among women themselves against the immodestly slit and the over-tight skirt."

Divorced Wife Now Charges Plot

Charging that her husband whom she divorced in 1905, his sister and father are conspiring to defraud her of rights in her former husband's property, Louise M. Browne of this city was denied an injunction from selling a house on Randolph avenue, Milton, and asks that a receiver be appointed to collect the rents and profits of the house, and to sell it so that she may be paid the sum of $2,954 she claims due her as alimony by a decree of the court made in 1909.

May Abandon N. H. Reservation Plan

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 5.—The plans for a Federal forest reservation in the White Mountains may be abandoned, it is said, as the State restrictions are believed to be too severe. The State wants to maintain almost complete supervision of the tract.

FRIEND SAYS VAN SCHAICK WAS POISONED

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The death of Singleton Van Schaick at his country home, "Near Stoogue," Pelham, N. Y., on July 13, has become the subject of an investigation by the authorities of Westchester county yesterday. It is known that a friend of the Van Schaick family has made an affidavit to Coroner Living ston, at New Rochelle, in which the circumstances surrounding the death are characterized as "suspicious."

The informant asserts to the best of his information and belief that Singleton Van Schaick died from the effects of chloral poisoning contained in stimulants to which the deceased had been addicted.

Fairest "Finest" on Duty in Chicago

Ten Policewomen Bar Hobble Skirts In First Day's Duty.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Chicago's fairest finest, ten new policewomen, in tailor made uniforms of regulation blue, swaggered in real "copper" style through the streets and parks today in their initial trick as guardians of the peace.

Each and every one of the ten put a ban on the hobble skirt, for they all wore wide skirts. "This is so we can run after an offender," said one of the fairest finest, as she peeled her eye on a youth trying to grab a handful of peanuts from a nearby fruitstand.

Cherries Figure in Slander Suit

Two Quincy Women Demand $1,000 from Winthrop Resident.

Cherries will figure in the slander suits brought today by Edith H. Lund and Maria H. Lund, both of Quincy, against Anna T. Bryne of Winthrop. The two Lund women ask $1,000 damages. Edith Lund charges Mrs. Bryne said to her: "You are a thief. You stole my cherries."

Maria Lund charges Mrs. Bryne said to her: "You are a thief."

The suit was filed at Dedham.

Brady Heirs Are Given $70,000,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The $70,000,000 will of Anthony N. Brady, the traction magnate, leaves to his two sons and a grandchild, the bulk of his estate. The widow receives $1,000,000 outright and an annuity of $500,000. One hundred thousand dollars goes to charity.

To the Visiting Knights of Columbus

YOUR HOSTS will agree, we think, that to fully "discover" Boston the visitor must make a tour of this very unusual store—a store that is more than a store—a public institution.

Our welcome to the city, therefore, includes a hearty invitation that you let us share in the hospitalities accorded you—that you look upon this store as a vital part of "headquarters."

At your command will be found our Personal Service Bureau, organized primarily for the convenience of strangers within our gates.

This Bureau will be more than glad to relieve you of any perplexities, great or small, besetting the path of the stranger.

MANY JOBS FOR RIGHT MEN AT STATE OFFICE

The condition of the labor market for July as relved from the State Free Employment Office at Boston is slightly below normal for this season of the year. It is between seasons, so to speak, and is the usual quiet period, although so far as the demand for help is concerned, August and January are the dullest months of the year. The demand for help and the number of positions reported filled has declined 24 per cent., as compared with the preceding month, and 16 per cent. as compared with July a year ago.

There is a good demand for men with executive ability and initiative to fill places requiring special knowledge and where the salary is in excess of $1,000 per annum. The labor market is flooded with "the fellow who can do anything," but "the man who really can do something" which requires experience, intelligence and skill is exceedingly scarce.

The demand for agricultural help has been excessive, even at increased wages, with a limited supply.

Calls Wilson the Prophet of Humbug

W. Bourke Cockran Attacks Tariff and Currency Bills in Interview.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—"This is an age of humbug and Woodrow Wilson is its prophet," declared W. Bourke Cockran, on his way to Milwaukee to attend the Perry centennial celebration.

"The proposed tariff revision," he said, "would stand for all time as a tremendous monument to the art of 'how you see it and now you don't.' If it were not completely overshadowed by the dangerous viciousness of the currency reform measure.

"This currency bill is positively vicious. I thought some of the Aldrich proposals were bad enough. I voted against them in the House. They refused to allow discussion on them and they were hurried through in the typical Cannon way, which meant that they went through like a cannon ball. Now proposals having much the same dangers are being pushed by the new administration."

Change Shawmut Avenue Car Route

Beginning Wednesday, August 6, and until the completion of track construction on Shawmut avenue between Dover street and the Pleasant Street Subway, all outbound cars will be diverted by way of Tremont and Dover streets. Inward bound cars will run on the regular route. On the completion of the outward track, all inbound cars will run via Dover and Tremont streets to the Subway, and the outward bound cars will resume the regular route.

Charge 5 in Nahant Under Gaming Law

William M. Thompson, Fred January, L. A. Dion, Miki Meyasaki, and Frank Palermo, were arraigned in the Nahant police court today, charged with conducting illegal gambling games. Their shops were raided by the Nahant police at the request of the Watch and Ward Society. The complaint was based on the fact that wheels with numbers were used for "prize" distribution.

Best Policeman in 1,500 Slain in Street

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Patrick Cotter, who left the army to join the police force and passed the best examination of 1,500 candidates in January, was shot dead early today by a man he was chasing, who had fired twice at a girl in the street. Cotter, they said at the station house, would have been promoted rapidly, and would have made the youngest captain in the city.

Riley Confers with Cabinet Officers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Chairman Riley of the Massachusetts Democratic Committee arrived here today to discuss patronage with the Democratic chieftains. He will confer with Secretaries Bryan, McAdoo, Wilson, and in fact all the members of the Cabinet in town.

Announces Cure of Cigarette Habit

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—The National Anti-Cigarette League announces it has a cure for cigarette smokers. It consists in bathing the tongue three times with a nitrate of silver solution.

BOY TELLS OF FINDING $1500 MORRIS GEMS

SALISBURY BEACH, Aug. 5.—The name of the boy who found the $1,500 diamond horseshoe which Mrs. I. Nelson Morris of Chicago lost here Saturday afternoon and the boy's own story of going shares in the reward of $50 were learned today.

The boy is Leslie Plumley, eleven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Plumley of No. 58 Haverhill street, Lawrence. The Plumleys are at the Eva cottage, with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Buckley.

Leslie Lumley tells his story thus:

"I was walking in front of the Spiral Thriller Saturday afternoon when I found a 'glass' horseshoe. I pinned it on my blouse and took it home, but didn't show it to anyone.

Sunday morning $1 was playing with it, letting sand run over it and watching it sparkle. Mr. Buck boy came out of the cottage and said: "I'll give you a nickel for it."

I wouldn't sell it. He offered me a quarter, but I wouldn't sell, and then he looked at it and said: "If you'll give he half, I'll show you where you can get $50 for it." I said: "All right."

Then Mr. Buckley and I took the pin to the Atlantic House and he telephoned to Mrs. Morris and we got $50.

14 Houses Razed by Forest Fire

HEMET, Cal., Aug. 5.—A wall of flame three miles wide swept into the Cleveland forest reserve today threatening tremendous damage to the national forest. A total of seventeen square miles has been devastated, and a loss of several hundred thousand dollars caused by the fire which started in Grow Valley when lightning struck a tree. Fourteen houses have been destroyed.

Women to Combat Radical Tendency

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 5.—The organization of a Women's League to combat the radical tendencies of the women's movement, including their demand for suffrage, featured the last session of the German Roman Catholic Central Verein, here.

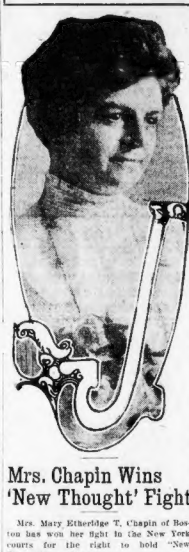
MRS. MARY ETHERIDGE T. CHAPIN, Boston woman, who has won right to conduct "New Thought" services in New York.



Mrs. Chapin Wins 'New Thought' Fight

Mrs. Mary Etheridge T. Chapin of Boston has won her fight in the New York courts for the right to hold "New Thought" services.

Mrs. Chapin had been holding these services in the Berkeley Theatre. She was a close friend of the late Mary Baker G. Eddy. Her lectures were objected to by the New Thought Church.

The New Thought Church sued Mrs. Chapin for using the name "New Thought" on the ground that she had usurped the church's title. Mrs. Caspin replied that "New Thought" was older than the church. The court decided that the New Thought Church could not claim any exclusive right to the name.

ACCUSED GIRL TELLS STORY OF TRON'S DEATH

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Miss Emma Elizabeth Krill, professional nurse, is in a hysterical condition today, following her arrest and arraignment on a charge of slaying her sweetheart, Dr Stanley E. Tron, a Harvard graduate, by administering morphine.

Miss Krill, while declaring her innocence, admits that Tron had threatened to leave her and return to Germany.

Miss Krill testified:

"Dr. Tron called me hastily from the telephone. He told me not to leave him a minute, saying, 'If you do I will die, Emma.' I felt of his pulse and he said, 'Don't take any pulse. I will be all right. Get me some atrophine and morphine.' I said, 'How much,' and he said, 'An eighth of a grain of morphine and one-hundredth of atrophine,' and I got it. He said, 'Give me some port wine,' and he drank most of it and lay on his side. His lips were blue. He said, 'Get me some ampidrate,' and I called down to the drug-gist, who brought it up.

"The doctor said, 'Break it for me,' and I did, and he took three smells and went into a convulsion."

Chairman Riley on Washington Visit

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Judge Thomas P. Riley of the Democratic State committee of Massachusetts visited a number of department heads and government offices today. His presence revived the rumor that he will be appointed United States District Attorney at Boston, although it is understood his visit is to say a final word on the appointment of a Boston collector. This latter nomination is expected to be sent to the Senate by President Wilson either today or tomorrow.

Urges McGrath for Postal Job

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Former United States District Attorney John H. Casey of Boston called upon Postmaster-General Burleson today to urge the appointment of John W. McGrath as superintendent of the Boston delivery at the mail postoffice. McGrath has been in postal service thirty-five years and has been very strongly endorsed for promotion. Among the other candidates are Jos. W. McMahon of the Postal Clerks' association and William F. Curley.

LABOR UNIONS PLAN FOR OWN STATE TICKET

Organized labor the State over is quietly preparing to enter politics by placing in nomination a complete ticket. Final decision in the matter will be withheld until the Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor meets in annual convention at Fall River September 15.

The building trades department of the Boston Central Labor Union has unanimously voted to back an independent Labor party ticket. The question is under consideration by a joint committee of both these organizations. The only formality to be attended to, previous to calling a party convention for the purpose of nominating candidates, is the endorsement of the State Federation itself.

Several of the most prominent labor leaders in Boston today declared that a resolution favoring independent political action by the trade unionists is sure to be introduced at their Fall River convention.

The present political mix-up in the old-line parties, they asserted, made this inevitable. But, none of them would name their probable candidate for Governor at the Fall election.

Find Unknown in Boston Harbor

The body of an unidentified man was recovered from the harbor near "T" wharf early today by the crew of the police boat Watchman. The body was sighted by Frank Emiel of the crew of the fishing schooner E. E. Hussey of Beverly, and was taken to the North Grove street morgue. It is that of a man about thirty, five feet nine inches tall, weighing 160 pounds. He was dark with brown hair and eyes and a dark moustache. He wore a black coat, vest and lasting cap, overalls, gray hosiery and black shoes.

J. F. Carens After Federal Position

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—James F. Carens of Newburyport, Mass., a candidate for State Auditor on the Democratic ticket last year, is seeking the position of assistant appraiser at the port of Boston. Carens is an assessor in Newburyport and has been indorsed for appointment by Massachusetts congressmen.

Tango a Bonanza to Chiropodists

Modern Dances Weaken Feet and Keep Pedicuriats Busy.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The chiropodists in convention in the Hotel Marlborough-Blenheim say the present day dances, such as the tango and the trot, are their best source of revenue.

Listen to Dr. Ernest Groff of the Hotel Plaza, chiropodist to the upper circle society, and especially the dancing patrons. He says women who used to call on him for monthly treatment now come to come weekly. Why? Because the turkey trot is playing havoc with the instep and the delicate muscles of the foot.

Woman Creator Just Myth, Say Divines

Discredit Truth of Translation of Nippur Tablets.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—Declaring that the latest story of the creation and the flood, learned from the translation by Dr. Arnuth Poebel of tablets dug up in Nippur, antedate the Genesis version of the same events, Philadelphia theologians declare that the story of Genesis is not affected in any way by the new version.

"It is only one of those yarns which pop up every once in a while," said the Rev. Dr. Montgomery of the Philadelphia Divinity School, "and it really is nothing more than fiction."

The theologians also laugh at the Babylonian declaration that a woman was the creator of the world.

FOSS STRIKERS TO TRY STATE BOARD AGAIN

Over a thousand strikers from the Foss plants, the Sturtevant Blower Company and the Becker Milling Company, will renew tomorrow at the State House their demands for an investigation of the strike by the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration.

The strikers will march from the South station to the State House and demand admission to the offices of the Board.

Prior to their voting to appear at the State House, the strikers unanimously rejected the Governor's offer for settlement given out last Friday, declaring that the offer was nothing more than asking them to surrender unconditionally.

Attorney Patron is engaged in preparing a writ of mandamus, and if the Board refuses to investigate the strike, he will at once present it to the Supreme Court. Arrangements will be made today to have either Attorney Patron or some of the leaders meet with the executive board of the Central Labor Union tonight, in reference to the combined action of both in fighting the case out in the courts.

Militant Bombs in $80,000 Lynton Fire

LYNTON, Eng., Aug. 5.—A mansion owned by the estate of the late Sir George Newnes was destroyed today by an incendiary fire. The police are looking for militant suffragettes as the perpetrators. The mansion was valued at $80,000. Six firemen were injured by bomb explosion. Investigation showed at least six high-power bombs had been placed in the structure.

Chicago Trilby Exhibits Foot

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The centre of attraction at the meeting of the National Association of Chiropodists at the Hotel Marlborough was the "American Trilby," personified in Miss Clara B. Honston from Chicago. Seated in a business-like looking office, the young woman exposed her foot, which by experts has been unanimously declared to be the most perfect foot and ankle in America.

REP. JOHN P. BUCKLEY OF BROCKTON.

This is a "wise" Democratic member of the Legislature who thinks that the New Haven lobby knows more about the welfare of the Commonwealth than his own party platform, his Governor, the Public Franchise League, the Chamber of Commerce, the Tax Commissioner, the Railroad Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission. He voted to give the New Haven Railroad control over more than half the street railways in the State

Ask him why he did it. If he tells you he did it to please some western representatives, tell him not to make you laugh.

If you think that this man should be retired where he can serve his own interests and not hurt you by doing so, send us your name and address. We shall not publish it.

Hunt Paris Robbers.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—Of all the theories held by the Parisian detective bureau in connection with the theft of a $750,000 pearl necklace between this city and London, the authorities are concentrating their attention upon the premise that international crooks, well known to the United States Secret Service Bureau, were responsible for the robbery.

Harrington Off to Join Cincinnati

Pitcher Frank Harrington, spitball artist on the Lynn club of the New England League, left last night for Cincinnati, where he is to join the Reds outfit. A month ago the Cincinnati team bid $4,000 for Harrington and the offer was accepted. Harrington was to leave the local club after the close of the New England League season.

Yesterday Manager Flaherty received an offer of $1,000 more if he would allow Harrington to join the Reds immediately and be accepted it.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Vernon H. Brown, former New York manager of the Cunard steamship line, died at his residence here today following a long illness.

PUBLIC SAFETY IN INSPECTION, SAYS CASSIDY

Mr. Cassidy tells you today of the necessity of all manufactories of food or drink for the people being open for inspection. All danger of uncleanliness is thus removed.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY

I notice that one of the large manufacturers of soft drinks advertised the other day that their plant was open to the inspection of the public.

This is one of the best ideas I have yet seen come from food or drink manufactories. It removes all danger to suddenly habits on the part of manufacturers, and the laxity that their help are likely to acquire without inspection.

I remember some years ago one of the large hotels of New York began the practice of throwing open its kitchens to the public for inspection. The result was that the employes, knowing everything they did was to be done in the limelight, took especial pains to keep the kitchen and food immaculate.

Did it ever occur to you that you have an ordinance which says cuspidors shall not be put up on the windows of public saloons? And yet you allow a bottling shop where disease-producing bacteria can be bottled by the thousands to exist almost under any conditions the manufacturer chooses.

I have seen bottling establishments here in Boston so filthy that they beggared description. I have seen bakeshops which left much room for improvement along lines of cleanliness.

All this could be avoided, and would be avoided, were this policy of throwing open places for public inspection to become general.

It's an advance in the right direction. The soft drink manufacturer who invites the public to inspect his laboratories is a pioneer for pure food. His invitation shows he is making goods he is proud of and of such high standard he feels that but to know is to buy.

Boston Women Who Have Made Good

No. 13—MISS MABEL B. URY

"A little woman perhaps five feet tall, with blonde hair and childlike blue eyes, who manages single handed all the engagement placing and financial arrangements of one of the busiest lecturers in the world—that is Mabel B. Ury, secretary to Charles Zueblin, the lecturer and publicist.

Not only does Miss Ury perform all the usual secretarial duties of a man whose "spare time" from lecturing is almost entirely taken up with magazine work and the writing of books on economic and sociological subjects, but she is unique in being a lecturer's secretary, who superintends the placing of all his engagements from the first tentative inquiry—or before it, by circularizing untried fields—to the moment when the engagement is made definite, the advertising and publicity provided for and Mr. Zueblin given the data for his information.

Also Dreier's Aide.

Only those familiar with the lecture bureau work can appreciate the magnitude of this undertaking, both in actual labor and in responsibility, and when every week brings with it from eight to fifteen lectures during the season, it seems impossible that one woman can handle it all.

Miss Ury not only does that, however, but she finds time also to act as business and office manager for Thomas Dreier, the writer and editor, and is even prouder of her original filing and indexing systems than she is of her phenomenal success in lecture placing.

For a whole year she was managing editor of the Twentieth Century Magazine, when Mr. Zueblin was its editor. She is a charter member of the new Women's City Club, and vitally interested in its work. She is an active suffragist.

She represented the Twentieth Century Magazine at the last biennial of the Federation of Women's Clubs in San Francisco. And any one meeting her for the first time would feel incensed to call her "little girl" and tell her that she would succeed some day when she was older.

"Why, I never think of myself as having made good," laughed Miss Ury, when that important question was put to her.

Comes from Iowa.

"There is always something new to do right ahead, and you haven't really made good till you're conquered ALL the obstacles, have you? Out at the University of Chicago"—and that telltale word betrays the fact that Miss Ury is a Westerner, an Iowan, to be exact—"I suppose I made good in one way; and on the Twentieth Century in another; and in my department on 'The Woman at Home' in the AMERICAN last Fall, in still another. But always I have new problems to face in Mr. Zueblin's work, or Mr. Dreier's, and I'm really too busy most of the time to think about what I have done in the past.

"Perhaps that's why I have succeeded, if I have," she added, whimsically. "The whole secret lies in these three things: I've kept my face always toward the future—toward the big plan; I've liked people and have been able to get along well with them; and I love detail and the planning of detail.

'ALL LEGAL,' SAYS AGENT OF 'LOAN KING'

This, the fourth day since Daniel H. Tolman, "King of Loan Sharks," was fined $1,000 in a New Jersey court and warned to quit the business under penalty of imprisonment, found his Boston office, in Room 234, No. 201 Devonshire street, still doing business.

H. M. Wilson, listed as manager, is a woman in middle life. She is on her vacation. Miss C. A. Shirr is in charge. Miss Shirr said today:

"Mr. Tolman hasn't been at the Boston office since last October. He generally pays us a visit about twice a year at auditing time. He is a very busy man. But I think, in justice to him, that something ought to be published in the Boston papers pointing out that he hasn't been doing an illegal business here.

"Our office has been licensed by the State of Massachusetts. We are operating within the law as to rates of interest. We have been filing our reports every week with Supervisor Brown and he has not made any complaint.

"We are entirely within the law here and should not be hampered by suspicion and theories. Customers come in and ask us all sorts of questions."

Just now Tolman's local office is doing a large business with vacationists. Young men and women are borrowing enough to enjoy their annual rest.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS OPEN NATIONAL CONVENTION ABOARD STEAMER, NANTASKET BOUND

the material benefits that can be here acquired. This pagan view of life holds away over men's minds. So widespread has been this agitation and so warlike the methods employed, that Europe has fully awakened to its dangers.

There uprisings, risings and mob violence have resulted, which threatened the total upheaval of society, and the reign of anarchy. In these disturbances the church has been made a special object of attack by the Socialistic press, by the destruction of church property and by the insults and assaults offered against the religious men and women, through the misguided mobs deluded and stirred on by social demagogues and leaders. Echoes of these uprisings have been heard here and the cry through our city streets of "No God and No Master" have made us realize also that the danger is already at hand and the enemy is in our midst.

Awake to the Danger.

Fortunately, there is an awakening in this country to this danger that threatens the welfare and security of society, and there is an earnest desire on the part of all right-minded and public-spirited men to seek the solution of these social problems. In the public addresses of leading thinkers in this country, in the recent inaugurals of many of the Governors of the different States, but especially in the inaugural of President Wilson, there is found this sincere effort to stir the public conscience for a readjustment of law and government to human needs, so that the laws may be based upon a higher conception of social obligation, and the civilization resulting may mean a higher social life "in safeguarding the health of the nation, the health of its men and its women and its children, as well as their rights in the struggle for existence."

This is the noble aim that is sought by the social leaders of this country, and this is the keynote struck in the appeal made by the President to the conscience of men when he speaks of the duty "to lift everything that concerns our life as a nation, to the light that shines from the hearth-fire of every man's conscience and vision of the right," and for this purpose he summons "all honest men, all patriotic, far-forward-looking men," to co-operate with him in this high enterprise.

Physical Force Condemned.

The lessons of Europe and the few experiences of a serious nature in our country have taught men that the solution of these great problems is not to be effected by physical force—by strikes, rioting and disorders, nor merely by legislation, that there is a tremendous influence yet to be exercised which, up to this period, has been ignored and tabooed as mediæval and retrogressive. It is the moral influence or the religious power in awakening the conscience of the people—of all classes, both the capitalist and the laborer to their duties and responsibilities before God, to one another and for the general good of society.

This is the influence so potent and necessary to curb avarice and selfish greed, to create a just and considerate regard for the rights of others, and to prompt a willingness to sacrifice self and selfish interests, for the general good, which is so paramount for the life of society and for the welfare, the peaceful and happy existence and security of each individual in society. Without this religious and moral element awakening the conscience of every individual—of the capitalist as well as the laborer, of the legislator as well as the legislated—all effort for a solution of the problem is fruitless and hopeless.

After the mass the delegates proceeded in special cars to Rowe's Wharf, where they embarked on one of the Nantasket steamers for a harbor cruise. The convention officially opened and addresses were made on board at noon.

Fireworks at Beach.

Tonight there will be a grand display of fireworks, following the enjoyment of a shore dinner, and the Knights and their guests will not return until nearly midnight.

The reception committee caring for the Knights and visitors today includes:

Martin F. Carney, chairman; Edward M. Gallagher, Charles J. Murphy, Jr., Henry F. Brennan, F. C. Brady, F. J. Crosby, Frank J. Flynn, William F. Riley, J. Mitchel Galvin, Malachi L. Jennings, Daniel V. McIsaac, Joseph L. Morley, J. W. O'Neily, Thomas E. Saint, Denis F. Sheehan, Joseph H. Stack, Myles J. Sweeney, William J. Cassidy, M. Charles Bresnahan, Thomas A. DeWire, Thomas E. McFarland, Thomas H. Sexton, Edward L. Byrne, W. T. A. Fitzgerald, Daniel B. Connor, David F. Tilley.

Today the Knights were receiving general congratulations on the splendid showing they made in their parade from Hotel Somerset to Mechanics Building, where the fourth degree was conferred on a class of 500.

Mayor's Welcome.

Mayor Fitzgerald, in his address to the knights just before they sailed from Rowe's wharf for Nantasket, said in part:

It is with the greatest pleasure that I welcome the convention of the Knights of Columbus to the city of Boston.

I know of no place upon earth where the broad principles of the order, the betterment of humanity, have met with a more generous and ready response than in this historic city.

We feel that we are justly proud of our city and our city is proud of this opportunity of welcoming you to our midst.

Ithaca Girl Weds Athlete Secretly

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 5.—A telegram to the parents of Miss Pansy Marguerite Johnson of this city, was the first intimation they had of her marriage in Bennington, Vt., to Robert Burns Whyte, for two years half-back of the Cornell football team. Whyte is employed at Worcester, Mass., as a mechanical engineer.

MRS. W. GOULD BROKAW, who has just won suit for divorce and gets $150,000 alimony.

Mrs. Brokaw Wins Suit for Divorce

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Mary Blair Brokaw was vindicated yesterday by ex-Judge Wadhams, who not only recommended a decree of divorce from W. Gould Brokaw, but denounced the latter's counter suit in which he accused his wife of improper conduct on three occasions and then failed to offer any testimony against her. The referee finds that Mrs. Brokaw's entire course of conduct was proper. A recommendation for $150,000 alimony is also made.

Newton-Watertown Ice Supply Short

Warm weather is ascribed as the reason for the threatened ice famine in Newton and Watertown. A. L. Howard, president of the Howard Ice Company, which supplies most of the trade in Newton and Watertown, declares, however, there will be no advance in prices.

The scarcity of ice in Southeastern Massachusetts has resulted in the New York, New Haven & Hartford establishing an ice rate to Fall River, Barnstable, Sandwich and other points on the Cape. The rate is considerably lower than the regular merchandise rate to the same points. It is quoted from Plympton.

Fire Causes $2,500 Loss in East Boston

A three-tenement wooden house being built at No. 985 Saratoga street, East Boston, was damaged by a fire of unknown origin early today with a $2,500 loss. A two-story wooden barn in the rear of No. 272 Western avenue, Brighton, belonging to Sarah Clark, was damaged to the extent of $200 by a fire today.

JEWEL THEFT REVEALS MERRY LIFE OF BROKER

conferences are held, and next the jewels wake up one bright morning in the safe of the Boston Stock Exchange house.

Many clews were followed by police and detectives of every description.

Detectives to Get Name.

Then came the exclusive story in last Sunday's AMERICAN. It caused consternation. Lawyers conferred, a well-known Boston Stock Exchange house spent $96 in telephoning to its New York house explaining how the story came out, and then temporary pence and quiet.

The jewels are still in the safe on State street—or in it Congress street—three Boston financiers are angry, the Boston broker is still trying to dig up the $60,000 to get the jewels back into the casket at Narragansett Pier.

Detectives working on the sensational Narragansett Pier case today gave out a frank report of their progress.

They have traced a man under suspicion from New York to Narragansett and back, and have accounted for his movements in Narragansett up to the very time of the robbery.

They admit the close relationship between this man and the other who "raised" $60,000 by pledging a portion of the jewels stolen from Mrs. John H. Hanan, with a Boston brokerage firm.

Mrs. C. C. Rumsey, it is believed, was robbed by a man newly suspected in the case. The man the detectives are watching left Narragansett in a gray motor car last night shortly after midnight. He has nineteen hours' start of his pursuers. Sheriff Wilcox of New York, two detectives, one Frank Baur of Washington, and A. B. Hayn, a Baltimore business man.

The suspect who fled last night had been a guest at the Hanan home on two or three occasions during his stay here.

The man's flight was sensational. Detectives keeping up a cautious espionage followed his huge gray car to the corner of Mathewson street and Kingstown road. The man saw them and left the girl with whom he was talking, a waitress in one of the most exclusive hotels in Narragansett Pier, and jumped into the car. The motor leaped forward and shot west on Kingstown road, while the astonished detectives gasped.

The girl, amazed, could answer no questions. She knew the man as "Mr. Fillmore." He was a "perfect gentleman." He had said nothing to her about giving him the plan of the hotel nor the location of the rooms of the silver-fashionable guests there. He had enthralled her with tales of Paris, Berlin, Vienna and Amsterdam.

Pursue in Motor Car.

Today, after a day of wild telegraphing and telephoning, the detectives and the sheriff started in a motor car in pursuit.

Here is the story of this suspect's life at the Pier:

On July 17 he came to one of the ocean-front hotels in the gray motor. He brought with him no large kit bags, two travelling bags and a suitcase. He was dressed tastily and was smooth shaven, about five feet nine inches tall, about thirty years old and weighed in the neighborhood of 160 pounds.

The one odd thing about the stranger was that he was absolutely without funds. He borrowed small sums for two days. From a barkeeper he secured $5. From the manager of the hotel he had no trouble in getting $10 more.

A few days later another stranger registered at a nearby hotel. Stranger number one and the newcomer became very friendly.

The first stranger sought the company of maids and waitresses at all times. He took two of the waitresses out walking at different times. Both these girls have talked freely to detectives.

Had a $10,000 Roll.

Some time between Saturday night and Sunday morning Gunning Rock, the Rumsey home, was robbed.

On Sunday afternoon stranger No. 1 radiated around his hotel, borrowed some more money and declared that he would pay all back next day. He did.

On Monday he bloomed forth with a roll of money that made the hotel men gasp. It is estimated that he had at least $10,000 in bills. But stranger No. 2 had disappeared, bag and baggage.

On the night of July 31, Sidgierook, the Summer cottage of Brander Matthews, professor of dramatic literature at Columbia University, was robbed of a quantity of heavy silver plate of Dutch design. A motor car carried that away, as no man could have carried it a mile.

DIVORCED WIFE LEADS SOCIAL OSTRACISM OF YOUNG MILLIONAIRE--IN SUNDAY'S AMERICAN

BOSTON THEATRICAL SEASON OPENS

MISS LOWELL IN 'KISS ME QUICK' AT THE SHUBERT

The curtain rises on "Kiss Me Quick" at the Shubert Theatre at 8:15. If you are not there on time you will be too late for the prologue, delivered by Miss Helen Lowell, and you will miss one of the prettiest and daintiest bits of graceful pleasantry with which theatregoers have been treated in ages.

It is more than probable that the majority of those present at the Shubert last night were there because "Kiss Me Quick" was the first show of the season and that they went with a mild hope that the show would be a good one, but it did not take the audience long to decide that its hope had been more than realized. In fact, the fun was so furious in the first act, with a life-like burlesque of moving picture making, that no one could believe that the pace could be kept up. But it was.

The action of the play occurs in the home and on the estate of Miss Gladiola Huntley, authoress and maiden lady of—well, a little more than forty. Upon this estate descends a moving picture company, which proceeds to mix with the Huntley household. There is a plot, but there isn't room enough in this column to tell it. In fact, to tell the truth, there are a dozen plots.

Play of Many Plots.

Just as soon as the possibilities of one seem near to exhaustion, that plot darts off at a tangent and becomes a new one. And every plot in the bunch is funny.

"Kiss Me Quick" is Shakespearian in the daring way in which the lovely and the mirth-provoking are harnessed together, and in which the inconsequentially impossible is made plausible. This statement may make the devotees of Shakespeare hold up their hands in holy horror, but there is a lot of truth to it. Fantastic situations are made to appear so natural that you do not feel as if you were making an exhibition of yourself laughing at them.

Miss Helen Lowell, who is featured on the program, plays the part of Miss Gladiola, the maiden lady who is, well, a little more than forty. She plays her with red hair and a collection of wonderful gowns fashioned to express her temperament. Ladies, you really should see that robe of the four seasons. First she is Autumn, and a lovely Autumn. She unfastens an agrafe or two and she is Winter, all in white. Another change, a fluttering of silks, and she is in turn Spring and Summer, vivid in green. She plays her with delicate art and with a fine sense of the esthetic possibilities of the grotesque. From her first appearance until the fall of the final curtain last night she was a delight.

A Real Comedian.

The principal male character, Joe Randall, "an actor who couldn't make good," was played by Arthur Aylesworth. Mr. Aylesworth is a real comedian. His part gave him many opportunities. He took full advantage of them. You couldn't help laughing with him.

Let Miss Louise Drew be mentioned next. She is the daughter of John Drew, but she is quite capable of standing on her own charming feet. She was Sally Jones, a chorus girl temporarily in the "movies," and her characterization was a clever one. Robert Kelly was capital as a moving picture director and—but what's the use? Miss Emily Calloway, Miss Laura Laird, Miss Mary Hastings, Miss Sadie Harris, Frederic Santley, Richard Faber, Edward Kunneron, J. J. Sampson, Charles Ashley and Eugene Bottler played the other parts and played them well.

ARTHUR AYLESWORTH as Joe Randall, and Helen Lowell as Gladiola Huntley in "Kiss Me Quick" at the Shubert.

When a show pleases an audience as much as "Kiss Me Quick" did the one last night, it is folly to look for flaws. "Kiss Me Quick" is a good show and when it gets shaken down and shortened a little it won't have to say odds of any of them in the race for popularity.

"Pinafore," Sung at Keith's.

The Juvenile Pinafore Opera Company heads an attractive bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre this week. All the favorite songs of that Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera success are sung during the hour of the up-to-date production.

Marie Fenton, in songs; James F. Kelley and Emma Pollock, in "Ginger Snaps"; Charles F. Semon, with droll stories, and Herbert and Claribel Farjeon, in "Disillusioned," are among the feature acts.

Others that share in the applause are the versatile trio, in song and pantomime; Martinetti and Sylvester in "Bumping and Bumped;" Lynch and Zoller, who swing Indian clubs cleverly, and Rowan and Felicia Sprague, in "Smart Songs."

Next week will be presented at B. F. Keith's for the first time upon any stage the one-act dramatic comedy, "The Woman Who Played By," by Vincent A. Lawrence, a young Boston playwright.

Tremont Theatre.

Yesterday afternoon at the Tremont Theatre the Kleine-Cines photo-drama "Quo Vadis" entered upon the eighth week of its Boston engagement. Many visiting members of the Knights of Columbus attended the performances yesterday afternoon and evening.

Globe Theatre.

The Globe program for the current week is a pleasing one. Brown, Deimore and Brown appeared yesterday in their new singing act, and Marguite and her partner entertained with athletic stunts. The picture program will be changed on Thursday.

St. James Theatre.

Helen Pingree, supported by an excellent company in "The Girl and the Coach," headed the bill at the St. James Theatre yesterday, and there were a number of novel and entertaining features in addition.

Paragon Park.

The cabaret show given in the Paragon Garden at Paragon Park last evening, from 6:30 to 8:30 and from 9 to 11 o'clock, was the best of the season. The bill is headed by Mlle. Emerie in her disrobing tragedy performance. Rou and Effie Weston give a splendid expose of the latest society dancing fads and Sorbim gives a series of dances in Lady Constance Richardson and Gertrude Hoffmann, and there are many other attractive features. There will be a special display of fireworks tomorrow night.

Norumbega Park.

Matthew Orr's fun-fest entitled "The Reining of Father," was presented yesterday afternoon and evening at Norumbega's covered open air theatre. The play deals with the experiences of a new rich family and its attempt to break into society. The vaudeville program included the Solaree Fire Dance and ten song numbers, including "Some Boy," "Havana Rose," "Little Reggie Rah! Rah!" and "When a Maid Comes Knocking at Your Heart."

Lexington Park.

In the Rustic Theatre of this famous park of pines a well balanced vaudeville program was presented to two large audiences yesterday afternoon and evening. Heading the bill were Coates, Keene & Johnson, late of the "Watermelon Trust;" Earle & Bartlett in an amusing sketch; Kimball & Donovan, the banjoists; W. E. Browning, the dialect comedian, and El Barto, the magician. Excellent moving pictures were shown.

Nantasket Boats.

Many persons took advantage of the pleasant afternoon and evening yesterday, to make the trip by boat to Nantasket. The rains had freshened the grass and foliage of the harbor islands and the trip was even more attractive than usual. The present running schedule gives one the opportunity for the enjoyment of a full day and evening at the beach.

Plymouth Trips.

More and more the residents of Boston, as well as visitors from other parts of the country, are awakening to the attractiveness of the voyage to Plymouth on the steamer Betty Alden. There is the delightful sail along the South Shore and the many points of interest at the home of the Pilgrims give an added savor.

Bass Point and Nahant.

Bass Point and Nahant and were never more picturesque as seashore resorts, never so well provided with amusements and pastimes, and consequently never so popular as this season. In consequence, the excursion travel on the Bass Point and Nahant line, with those staunch steamers, the Machigonne and the General Lincoln, making hourly trips to these resorts from Otis Wharf, 408 Atlantic avenue, was never greater than this Summer.

Provincetown Trips.

Those who take the 100-mile deep sea trip on the fast big iron steamship, the Dorothy Bradford, to Provincetown and return this will have a splendid opportunity to view at close range the new Argentine dreadnought which has just left the Fore River works, and will be back in the lower harbor taking on her coal supply. The Dorothy Bradford leaves Day Line Wharf every week day at 9 o'clock.

Gloucester Trips.

No one who is fond of the water should fail to take the steamer trip to Gloucester. The famous North Shore route takes the voyager right out towards the open sea and is full of interest.

King Philip Trips.

Tall tales of big fish were reported by those who made the trip to the deep sea fishing grounds on the steamer King Philip yesterday. This trip is of course, a daily event.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

The forty "Merry Maids" still maintain their popularity at the Bowdoin Square Theatre. Mlle. Faustina won much applause yesterday by her toe dancing.

Orpheum Theatre.

Harry Leighton and his company, in "Get-Away-Quick-Dugan," headed an entertaining bill at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday. There were a number of attractive features and plenty of applause.

Coming Events.

Waldron's Casino opens for the season next Saturday afternoon with the Follies of the Day Company as the attraction.

The Majestic Theatre will reopen Monday evening, August 18, with "What Happened to Mary," the scene of which is laid in an oyster fishing village on Chesapeake Bay.

The Howard will open for the Fall season next Monday with the "High Life Girls" as the opening show.

LIND'S MISSION CRUCIAL TEST OF MEDIATION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Mediation, as the cornerstone of President Wilson's Mexican policy, is certain to pass through its critical period at Mexico City within two weeks after the arrival of former Governor John Lind of Minnesota, the President's special representative to Mexico City.

The length of the stay of Governor Lind in Mexico is indeterminate. If Huerta should refuse absolutely to treat with him, it is believed in well-informed circles here, he probably would return to Washington without wasting much time. If mediation were received with hostility also from the various bands of revolutionists, Mr. Lind would have little scope for his efforts.

Developments in the Mexican situation today show that the President is not unalterably committed to any policy except by his opposition to recognition of the Huerta administration and to armed intervention.

It was made clear today that Mr. Lind goes to Mexico with no specific instructions except to evolve a peace plan.

Pretty Anti-Kiss Crusader Nearing!

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 5.—Men delegates to the international congress of geologists here marvel at the record of Dr. Annie T. Quensel, a delegate from Sweden, of being an unkissed wife, for she is strikingly beautiful.

Dr. Quensel will lecture in the United State in the interests of an international anti-kissing crusade. She says:

"Neither my husband nor I have ever kissed any one. We believe kissing a menace to good health, and persons indulging should be punished by law."

Legislators Go to Prison for Bribery

WEBSTER SPRINGS, W. Va., Aug. 5.—Convicted of bribery in connection with the election of a United States Senator, Representatives Rhodes, Duff and Asbury are sentenced to six years each, Senator Smith to five years and a half, and Representative Hill to five years, in the penitentiary.

URGES FIRE LIMIT VOTE BY BLOCKS

William Atkinson of the firm of Codman & Despradelle, architects, No. 31 Beacon street, has come forward with a plan which he believes will solve the problem of extension of the fire limits.

This is the first requisite to a proper protection from the fire peril in Boston, according to experts. Fire Commissioner Charles H. Cole and Chief Mullen say that only luck has prevented a conflagration here already.

Mr. Atkinson believes his plan will at once effect the reform which a dilatory City Council has delayed and delayed and delayed. His plan is simply this—to divide the entire city into districts—a district being in each case a city block and to have the owners in that block decide by vote whether the fire limits shall be extended to that block or not.

Once the tenants had voted to extend the limits, that block would be within the limits forever after.

Mr. Atkinson says our building laws should be classified, based on the three primary divisions of health, strength and fire. He has already indorsed Massachusetts laws under those classes.

"The first step for a uniform arrangement of our building laws," said Mr. Atkinson, "is to separate from the mass of building laws those which deal with fire prevention.

Mr. Atkinson maintains that the initial principle is the most important provision of a building law. He would require all builders to submit to an inspection of their work by a proper authority before the laths have been nailed.

He makes the point that once the laths are on, every fault of construction is hidden beneath the laths or the plaster.

"Toward the installation of automatic sprinklers," continues Mr. Atkinson, "we have already made a beginning in our law by requiring them in stores and warehouses of over 10,000 feet area.

"New York appears to be in advance of us in the matter of fireproof buildings.

"According to Section 105 of the Code, they require that all hotels, lodging houses, schools, theatres, jails, police stations, hospitals, asylums and institutions shall be of fireproof construction, except when less than 36 ft. 6 in. in height. This is a more stringent provision than we have in Boston.

"We have few fireproof hotels in Boston. Theatres are the only type of building which must be fireproof. But there are remodelled tenement houses in Dorchester right now which, flimsy as they are, are being used for moving picture purposes.

"In Chicago they recognize a class between 'fireproof and 'ordinary' construction, which they classify as 'slow burning' construction.

"The Chicago law dealing with theatres and places of public assemblage includes me so much more thorough and complete than ours. The date 1910 would indicate that this is due to the lessons of the Iroquois disaster.

"The Chicago law appears to recognize the automatic sprinkler more than we do, by allowing it as an equivalent for certain forms of construction as in Section 651, which allows wooden stairways in certain buildings, provided automatic sprinklers are installed.

Gangsters in Replica of Rosenthal Affair

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—A shooting affray very like the assassination of Herman Rosenthal, occurred here early today when three gunmen perhaps mortally wounded William Lustig, twenty years.

The gangsters tossed their revolver into the street and fled in an automobile. The shooting is blamed on "Dopey Benny's" gang, who charged Lustig with being a stool pigeon for District Attorney Whitman.

The Boston Sunday Post STEALS ANOTHER BIG NEWS STORY from the Sunday AMERICAN

Which is NOTHING UNUSUAL for the Post to do, and We Must Admit is MUCH CHEAPER Than Employing Reporters to Get the News First Hand.

The Sunday AMERICAN printed in its early edition, which was sold on the streets of Boston and other cities as early as 5 o'clock Saturday night, and in all its subsequent editions, a story which it had SECURED EXCLUSIVELY AND PAID FOR

The SUNDAY POST STOLE THIS STORY, made a pretense of rewriting it, and SOLD IT TO ITS READERS AS ITS OWN and without credit to the Sunday AMERICAN.

It is CHEAPER to STEAL NEWS STORIES than to pay reporters and salaried writers to go get them. It also saves railroad fares and other expenses the reporters would incur in going after them.

This is not the FIRST TIME the Sunday Post has STOLEN IMPORTANT NEWS STORIES from the Sunday AMERICAN.

The particular article in question this time is the story of the dissension among the members of Greenacre Fellowship, a unique religious organization with thousands of members all over the world and founded by Boston people for the study of all religions of the world.

The doings of this organization have figured in the news time after time, and t'e story which the Post PIRATED from the Sunday AMERICAN was considered so important by the Post Editors that they displayed it on their first page with a three-column head—THE BIGGEST HEADLINE on the page.

The Post reprinted the story almost word for word and paragraph by paragraph as it was FIRST PUBLISHED in the Sunday AMERICAN, and as careful comparison conclusively shows.

MRS. GOULD DENOUNCES THE SLIT SKIRT

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Edwin Gould, returning to New York from a Western trip, placed herself on record in an interview here against immodest dress for women on the streets or at bathing beaches. She said:

I am not in favor of freak or suggestive modes. The extreme slit skirt to which objection has been taken in various parts of the country is not worn in New York by any of my friends. Nor do I know any one who appears at bathing beaches in one-piece suits such as Chicago has forbidden.

I expect to see a revulsion among women themselves against the immodestly slit and the over-tight skirt.

The wave of dress reform that seems to be due will, I think, carry the women of the country back to normal and conservative modes. I expect to see a return of the reasonable wide skirt, which is now considered out of date. Most of the women of my acquaintance agree with me that it is time to revert to the old lines in dress with such modification as good taste may dictate.

Member of women's clubs in St. Paul purpose making appeals to manufacturers, pattern makers, designers and modistes to bring about a modification of current styles. War is to be made particularly on the tight skirt, the slit skirt, the absence of petticoats and the excessively low-cut evening gowns.

Denies Naval Base Plans for Bermuda

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Lieutenant-General Sir G. M. Bullock, K. C. B., Governor of Bermuda, said the report that Great Britain is contemplating establishing a strong naval base in Bermuda is largely imagination.

BIRD SILENT ON FOSS TIP TO QUIT MOOSERS

Charles Sumner Bird, whom Governor Foss urges—in his reply to the Progressive leader's invitation that the Governor enter the Bull Moose primaries—to go back to the G. O. P. whence he came, today had no comment to make. The Governor's statement, however, gave the politicians plenty to talk about.

Governor Foss said, in part:

"I urge you to announce yourself as a Republican and to contest with Colonel Benton for the nomination of that party. That party is full of progressives who will never follow you out of it even to victory, but who would welcome that progressive Republican leadership which the machine is working night and day to stifle.

"Again your candidacy works directly against one of the reforms you most zealously advocate, namely, the direct primary. Your appearance in the field has therefore reduced both primaries to a farce. For example, when Elmer Stevens, treasurer of the Commonwealth, was considering recently the announcement of his own candidacy for the Republican nomination, he was approached by friends of Mr. Benton and was persuaded upon not to become a candidate on the argument that there should be no contest within that party at the primary. In other words, the machine organization of that party does not yet realize that an election in this State rests with the people.

Beebe Chauffeur Held for Auto Death

Frank W. Smith of Blackwood street, Boston, chauffeur for J. Arthur Beebe of No. 119 Commonwealth avenue, was held in $1,000 bonds for the Grand Jury on a charge of manslaughter. He is alleged to have struck and killed Harry Sombekkil, ten, of No. 32 Broadway.

Malden Boy Hopes He's Heir to Million

Gets Word Uncle Left Him Fortune; Father Says It Is a Hoax.

Kenneth Jopp, seventeen, of No. 54 Las Casas road, Malden, was busy today figuring out what he will do with the million dollars he expects to receive from his uncle in the West. For he received this telegram:

"You have been left $1,000,000 by an uncle in the West. (Signed) Harvey and West." There was no date line on the telegram.

The boy's father came to Boston today to seek such a firm of lawyers. Mr. Jopp, while he told a brother in the West, is inclined to believe his son is the victim of a practical joke. He says that if his brother was dead he would have been notified.

Texans Plan $50,000 to Keep Bryan Busy

Ready with Fund If He Agrees to Stick to Government Duty.

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 5.—Democrats of Texas plan to raise Secretary of State Bryan a present of $50,000—more than four times his salary from the government—if he will promise to stop seeking $250 a night on the lecture platform and stick to his job in Washington during the Mexican crisis. The movement was started in Orange, Tex., and already $1,000 has been pledged.

Jury Trials for Capital "Drunks"

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Because of the heavy penalties imposed under the new excise law on those who appear in public in Washington after too liberal indulgence in alcoholic stimulants, Judge Pugh announced in Police Court today that hereafter such persons may demand and obtain a jury trial, if they so desire.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 5.—Nearly 1,500 delegates joined in the opening of the first business session of the convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles here today. There is a movement to have the Eagles build a $100,000 sanitarium at Hot Springs.

SAYS YANKEE RICH WOULD DINE BABOON

LONDON, Aug. 5.—American society women are accused of setting too swift a pace by Filson Young, a famous English publicist, in an article in the Saturday Review.

Supplementing his article by an interview, Mr. Young today said:

If a baboon could be trained to play ragtime he would soon be the rage and would be lavished to dine by the idle rich. Where the shepherd goes, society women follow like sheep.

In the case of questionable dances American women have been to blame.

"Tango" in Latin means "I touch," and it is well named.

American women in London and Paris are the leaders in revels which would cause a blush of shame to redden the cheeks of every modest woman. One by one the English leaders have surrendered to the daring irreverence of the American women.

Tuxedo—A Hit with the Hit-Makers

HUNDREDS of the snappiest ballplayers in the country—the clean-cut athletes who provide Americans with their greatest outdoor relaxation—enthusiastically endorse Tuxedo. This is the kind of endorsement that carries a convincing punch.

These men know that Tuxedo is a mild, pure tobacco, which can be smoked all day with pleasure. Tuxedo can not bite the tongue; it burns freely and smoothly, giving a cool, sweet smoke.

And thousands of the fans that pack the stands consider their pipeful of Tuxedo as half the enjoyment of their afternoon off.

FRED. CLARKE

Fred. Clarke, famous manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, says:

"It's a dandy merry bellylaugh to smoke Tuxedo. I do, always. I know of no other tobacco that gives the satisfaction that Tuxedo does."

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

From the scoreboard man to the magnate in the private box, everybody on the grounds is "catching on to" the supreme merit of Tuxedo.

Tuxedo is made from the finest, mildest leaves of high-grade Burley tobacco, so treated under the famous original "Tuxedo Process" that it burns slow and cool, with a delightful flavor and aroma. The "Tuxedo process" makes it impossible for this perfect tobacco to bite or sting the most delicate throat or tongue.

Tuxedo has many imitators—in outward appearance. It has no equal in the pipe or cigarette.

BURNS SIDESTEPS WILLARD'S CHALLENGE TO ARTHUR PELKY

DOUBLE-HEADER IS CARDED FOR SOX THIS AFTERNOON

RED SOX AND BROWNS MEET IN TWO GAMES

Thankful to old Jupe Pluvius for a welcomed day's rest, the Red Sox, somewhat recovered from the bitter attack upon them by the climbing Naps, will go after the St. Louis Browns in a double-header at the Fenway Park this afternoon. As is the custom, the first game will begin at 1:45.

The Browns, although very well acquainted with the cellar position of the American League, are putting up a very fine article of ball these days, due mainly to the fact that they have a real pitching staff, made up entirely of recruits.

Browns' Pitchers the Best.

The Mound City team has perhaps the best staff of hurlers in Ban Johnson's organization. Hamilton, Baumgardner, Leverenz, Wellman, Mitchell and Stone can all pitch classy ball. Today the Sox will be asked to face Wellman and Leverenz, both southpaws, but there is a chance that Manager Stovall will shift his plans and shove in a right-hander, should one of his left-handers go wrong in the first game.

It is very uncertain as to who Carrigan will select to do the box work for the Sox, but the chances are that "Dutch" Leonard will be called upon in one of the games. Bedient or Moseley will hurl the other contest.

Hall Will Be Prepared.

Charley Hall will be held in reserve, in case any of Manager Carrigan's selections go wrong, but it does not seem as though he will start a game. Hall worked eleven hard innings against the Naps on Thursday, but when he relieved Foster in the second inning of Saturday's game he was his old self. Hall is not a pitcher who can stand a great amount of work, for he pitches "hard" and puts all his energy into his work.

The Red Sox have secured infielder Cooney of the Worcester, New England League, team. He is a shortstop, and will report at the end of the New England League season.

HOT LINERS

An error by Ty Cobb gave the New York Yankees a victory over Detroit by the score of 6 to 4.

The luck of the Brooklyn Dodgers has at last turned, the Cubs being the victims.

The Chicago White Sox are living up to their reputation as the "Hitless wonders," beating Washington in spite of the fact that the Senators got ten hits and the Sox only four.

Cleveland's winning streak was broken by the Mackmen. Dushner, a southpaw from Maysville, Ky., was sent in by the Naps and checked the slugging of the Athletics.

Donie Bush, the Detroit Tigers' shortstop, who was banished for kicking by Umpire Silk O'Loughlin, put the fans at the Polo Grounds in a roar of laughter by borrowing a watch from Rollie Zeider and holding it to the plate. Even the stern faced Silk O'Loughlin gave way to a smile.

Jack Coombs appeared in uniform at Shibe Park for the first time since April 11, having been laid up with typhoid fever. The "invalid" weighs 185 pounds.

As the Giants were ahead when McGraw retired Demaree the victory goes to him although it was really Marquard who put it over the Buccaneers.

Wells by Knockout.

Wiley Hopes to Wipe Out Defeat by Moran

Match races, both sprint and paced, will be the attractions at the Revere cycle track this evening. Al Goulette, the great Australian sprinter and one of the most popular riders that ever appeared at the local track, will be one of the stars. His opponent is another Antipodean, almost as well known. Al Grenda, the giant Tasmanian woodchopper, in the match heats, best two in three.

Jimmy Morris and George Wiley are training hard for their special match race of ten-mile heats, best two in three, paced by motors. Wiley is determined to wipe out the defeat of last Saturday, for Moran attained too much prominence by his victory.

Yale Captain in Gotham Semi-Finals

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—A. H. Man, Jr., the Yale captain, won his place in the semi-final round of the New York State lawn tennis championship tournament on the turf courts of the Crescent A. C. in the fifth round Man defeated M. L. I. Galvao, 8—6, 6—0. Man played a placing game, running Galvao about the court until he had him exhausted.

Inman, an ex-champion, defeated R. Lerey, title holder, at 6—4, 9—7. Voshell in the same round defeated C. F. Watson, Jr., of Orange, 6—3, 10—8, and F. C. Boggs defeated S. S. Parker, 6—4, 6—4.

In the first round of the doubles W. M. Johnson, the California boy, paired with Dean Mathey, ex-Princeton champion, defeated H. S. Balch and C. Beasley, Jr., 6—3, 6—0.

Baltimore Golfer Is Ekwanok Attraction

MANCHESTER, Vt., Aug. 5.—In the day's practice rounds at Ekwanok by the cracks gathered here for the first President's Cup tournament, B. Warren Corkran of Baltimore continued to be the centre of attraction. He holed out a card of an even seventy, the score equaling the course record, excepting that the record score was made from the tournament tees. Norman F. Hunter went around eighty. Over hundred and forty have already entered.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

THE ability of the Athletics to defeat their most dangerous competitors, as demonstrated by not only the 7 to 1 victory over the Naps yesterday but by the Cleveland and Washington series to date, seemingly gives the Mackmen the necessary "edge" to land the American league pennant this year.

THE Athletics have now a seven and one-half game lead over the Naps and a thirteen game lead over the Senators. In the two series the Mackmen have won nineteen games and lost eight, so putting aside all other games played by the three clubs it may be seen the advantage of the Philadelphia team over the nearest contenders is not two less than zero, separating the first and third clubs of the league.

The difference is less in the series between the Athletics and Naps than it is in the standing by three and one-half games, but on the whole the study of baseball mathematics tends to convince one that the leaders in the American League are occupying the top rung mainly because they are able to defeat the very clubs which seemingly have the best chance to oust them from their place.

The same holds true in the National League where the Giants' margin is largely built out of wins achieved over the clubs closest to them in the standing. As long as these conditions prevail and there seems to be no visible reason why they will not continue to hold, there will be very little chance for any other aspiring manager to oust either Mack or Mathey from the leaderships of their respective leagues.

THE much frazzled pitching staff of the Red Sox was given another coat of much-needed rest on the veratory map yesterday. It remains to be seen how much good it will do them, for unless Jim Carrigan can perk up and show better baseball than they did in the Cleveland series they will not be likely to win many more games from the Browns than they did from the Naps.

At the same time existing conditions warrant more suspended judgment than some Boston "fans" and critics have seemed willing to exercise to date. The Red Sox last season had a great deal of good fortune; they have had much more ill fortune this year and to expect anything like the same showing is utterly unreasonable. Let everybody pull for Manager Carrigan just as hard as they can, a little encouragement will help him a whole lot in the work of building up for next season, even if it doesn't land the team any higher this year.

THE Pilgrims are unfortunate in hitting Redland at a time when Tinker's eyes are grayed in their very best batting form and paying the penalty by getting games in the lost column. There is only one third of a ball club harder to defeat than a championship team and that is a tailender who is travelling like a champion. Just now the Reds are going at a fast clip and seem capable of making trouble for the best of them.

But in spite of the set-backs the Pilgrims are receiving they should hold their own in the West and come home within striking distance of, if not actually in, fifth position. All signs point towards the Boston crowd beating Brooklyn out and finishing at the top of the second division. Fifth position will make a good starting point for Manager Stallings next year.

IT may be that this Shawkey person is only something new and is getting by because he has not been looked over often enough to la Coveleskies, but on present form we had rather predict another Dowling than a failure. With Jack Coombs also in Steveus ready to go in the box, the Mackmen seem to look like more serious contenders than ever.

WHILE the races in the two major leagues have taken on more or less the appearance of processions, there has been a contest going on at our very gates which warrants a passing notice. Only twenty points, which is a fair line of the year means a trifle more than two games up and down separate the first place Lawrence club from the fourth place Portland club this morning. If it gets much closer the result will be four side-holted managers in the New England League will have to be sent away for their health. And to make all things more interesting the fifth place club is not so far behind that catching some of the leaders before the season is over is an impossibility.

IN Frank Harrington of the Lynn club, the Reds have secured one of the very best hornmen developed in the New England League. Less of all he is a youngster, with only of his career in front of him. Manager Tinker is to be congratulated on his good fortune in securing so good a pitcher to take the place of Benton, now in the hospital. Harrington will be missed by the Lynn club, however. It behooves Manager Flaherty to get a hustle on and fill the gap.

Ex-Cub Hofman Will Join Yankees in 1914

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 5.—Artie Hofman is playing a "comeback" role with the local Southern League club and it is probable that he will be with the New York Yankees in 1914.

It is hinted that Frank Chance requested Hofman to finish the current season with the miners, and if he showed a flash of his old time form he would be bought by the Yankees.

Hofman has been playing great ball since coming South, and his weak legs do not show any signs of injury. He says he is just as fast as when he was with the Cubs and believes he can make good in the big league again.

Hofman has asked President Hrig not to sell him to any National League club as he wants to join Frank Chance in New York.

Boehling Will Not Last, Says Chance

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Frank Chance believes Joe Boehling, Washington's sensational southpaw youngster, who won eleven games in a row, will not last long in the big leagues. "Four out of five balls he throws are curves," says the P. L., "and he will be all through in a couple of seasons. It doesn't matter how strong he is. Nobody can confine himself to curves and stay up here. I've seen a lot of them break into the big leagues and curve eight out of every ten balls, and in a year or two they were back in the minors. Griffith might as well use him all he can now, for he won't have him to use many seasons."

Point Judith Scores for Pony Polo Title

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 5.—In a game full of thrills and brilliant playing Point Judith defeated Rockaway by 6½ to 6½ in the first game for the open pony polo championship.

Lord Wodehouse, No. 4 on Point Judith, made his first appearance here and played an exceptionally good game on the defence as well as contributing two goals by clever mallet work. The playing of La Montagne and J. G. Milburn for Rockaway was a feature.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 5.—Either Bill James or Otto Hess will work in the third game of the series this afternoon and the Pilgrims give forth the information that they are out for a win. The Reds, however, will exert all efforts to take this third one and thereby strengthen their hold on seventh place. Brown will likely work for the Reds.

There is very little that can be said for the second game other than that the Reds had on their batting togs and Acting Manager Bill Sweeney, who had charge of the club affairs during the absence of Manager Stallings, could not find a pitcher who was able to run out and stop the slaughter.

It's true that no change was made in the pitching department of the Boston team until the seventh inning, and at that time there was such a lead of Cincinnati runs to be overcome that something more than pitching was needed to give this game to the Pilgrims.

Johnson Had 'Em Guessing.

As no big batting rallies were started by the visitors the need of a change in the pitching department was not urgent. Chief Johnson, who went to the mound for the Reds following the dismissal of Leon Ames, was traveling a fast gait and had most of the Boston sluggers doing as he wished.

Ames was dragged in the first to allow Bates to hit for him, and this was a case where pinch hitting was produced in a manner to leave nothing desired. Bates smote one afar to center good for the entire circuit and scoring Tinker ahead of him.

Some change was made in the batting order of the Boston club by Sweeney. McDonald was sent to third and Smith, who has failed to hit much lately, was sent to the bench. He was moved up to bat second, and Lord, who has been hitting in this position, has slipped down to fourth.

McDonald Back in Game.

McDonald showed his appreciation in getting back in the game by hitting his first trip to the plate, this hit counting much in the scoring of the first run and after this he again reached first on two different occasions, once on an error, and again on a pass. Maranville, Myers and Mann were the run getters for the Pilgrims. Mann scoring two of the four secured.

In the early part of the conflict Bill Sweeney demonstrated the fact that he has the biggest man around second base. Groh, who singled in the first, attempted to steal; he found Sweeney taking up much of the room around the second sack and in the pushing match which followed, Groh was bumped to the dirt, hurting a bruised ankle and had to leave the game.

Murphy Satisfied with Evers' Work

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Rumors that John Evers would not be retained at the end of the present season as manager of the Chicago Nationals were denied this afternoon by President Murphy. Murphy declared that Evers' work was entirely satisfactory; that he wanted a manager of Evers' "fighting spirit" shown by Evers, whether it was directed at umpires or players.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

OVER two hundred miles out under the ocean, three thousand men are at work pushing a great tunnel out under the Atlantic, the most gigantic engineering scheme ever conceived the brain of man. Rives, the chief engineer of the new work, [illegible] on the scene, after a trip from shore in a tunnel [illegible] a breakdown. [illegible] there is an [illegible] explosion and men and machinery are swept backward by a tremendous blast. Then follows a scene of horror. Rives and a few survivors stumble on foot away from the disaster.

They came to a small sub-station where supplies had been stored and tear the boxes open with their bare hands. Rives warns them [illegible] each t the emergency lamps, so they hurl these aside and load themselves with provisions that none of them can eat. Then the crazy procession reels on into the darkness, and after hours [illegible] into the view of faint lights at main station No. 4.

The Confessions of a Medium

Being an Expose of Fakery in Spiritualism, Clairvoyance, Palmistry, etc.

I WROTE BOTH THE SCRAWL AND MESSAGE, KNOWINGLY AND WITH THE PURPOSE OF DISCOVERING WHETHER THE COMMUNICATION, SO MANIFESTLY FRAUDULENT, WOULD BE ACCEPTED AS GENUINE. IT WAS, AND SO ARE THOUSANDS OF OTHER PSYCHIC DEMONSTRATIONS. THE ARGUMENT HAS BEEN MADE THAT ONE MIGHT GIVE MESSAGES LIKE THE FORMER. BUT WHERE ACTUAL SIGNATURES AND TOTALLY OPPOSITE STYLES OF WRITING HAVE APPEARED THROUGH THE ONE MEDIUM IN PENMANSHIP DIFFERENT TO HIS OWN, ONLY VARIOUS SPIRITS COULD HAVE DONE THEM.

By Charles D. Isaacson

Copyright, 1913, International News Service.

"BEHOLD the wonderful Hindoo by whose mysterious power messages are written by the dead. Just take this pad, tear off a sheet, look carefully on each side to make sure nothing is written on it; write your initials or some word by which to identify it and the spirit of a friend in the land beyond will write you a message on the very same paper. The weirdest thing you have ever seen. Ah, you will try it, and you and you and you."

You pay your money and then write your initials. The barker carefully hands the paper to a frown faced kneeling man —the Hindoo—who places it in a cunningly marked tube, puts on the cover, and seems to go into a convulsion and trance combined. He smites himself on the forehead, wildly waves his hand in the air, then points it straight at the tube, which he holds high above him, while he murmurs:

"Buddin, O Buddoo! To a game see! Divine! Arre! Buddha yeo divia!"

Then he lifts the cover, takes out the paper, hands it to the barker, who passes it to you. Sure enough your initials are there, and the long, closely written message telling nothing, surrounds it. Really, it is a shame for the wonderful "Hindoo" to have wasted so much effort and given such a clever "foreign" prager. Why not tell his dupes in the very beginning that the blank paper had been written on long before they initialed it—lemon juice being used, which appeared invisible until the acids inside the tube brought it out?

I have never bothered to try the foregoing myself; it is too obvious. But I have studied into the more scientific spirit or automatic writing, such as is being used to fool thousands out of their money; such experiments as many intelligent people declare could not be done except by supernatural means. I will show you how much they know about it.

One evening a gentleman whom I did not know was brought to my home by a friend. He wanted to see if I could get several messages for him, and particularly an answer to a problem then bothering him. I told him I would try. A pad was placed before me, and I held a pencil, over which I placed a large napkin. While we were waiting for a communication we talked on the day's baseball game, the latest play, a startling murder that had just been holding the public attention.

"Has anything happened?" asked the gentleman.

"No," said I. "Not that I know of, but it is possible that it might have occurred without my being aware," so I raised the napkin and we saw a lot of scribbling.

"Well, that's something," I said. "Oftentimes the spirit cannot form the letters. He is like a child, but he gains power with experience. We will try again." This is what we found:

"I am answering your question.

"Don't do it. You are on the wrong path."

"Thank you," said the gentleman. "that sets me at ease. I knew my father was troubled about a business deal I was about to enter. If he had said yes I would have gone ahead, but now it is off. Thank you, and good night."

I wrote both the scrawl and message, knowingly and with the purpose of discovering whether the communication, so manifestly fraudulent, would be accepted as genuine. It was. And so are thousands of other psychic demonstrations. The argument has been made that one might give messages like the former, but where actual signatures and totally opposite styles of writing have appeared through the one medium entirely different to his own, only various spirits could have done them.

One night we were trying to get in touch with the great poet, Walt Whitman. I held the pencil, and suddenly my hand seemed to be possessed, and this is what happened:

Walt Whitman.

And there followed a poem which I am going to publish some time. The whole thing was in a handwriting which, when compared with that of the beloved free thinker, was identical, and the thoughts were thoroughly in his peculiar style.

Again, on still another occasion, while I was surrounded by mystified friends, an old maiden lady wrote as follows, through my hand:

I want to talk to my niece.

It was slowly indited and scarcely similar to Walt Whitman's, or the bold masculine lines of the father who wrote to his troubled son. And still more wonderful than any of the previous messages was the fact that I hadn't been deciphered yet, and, which I have been told, is a sort of ancient Greek.

No one person could have done the hundreds of different writings; no one person could have so closely produced known signatures of men like Washington, Lincoln, Cleveland, Napoleon. Yet I did them. It didn't take much study or practice to do them, either.

Now, the pencil or pen have not been the only writing instruments used. Once I placed a paper in a typewriter and together with my investigators went out of the room, locked the door, came back in a few minutes and found a message crudely typed on the paper! No one had been in the room. This is how it was done: The paper had already been written on, but when I showed it the people saw only the opposite side, and when they were not looking I slipped the right side up into the machine. Just a bit of sleight-of-hand; but you couldn't change the opinion of these devotees into the mysteries that this was surely a manifestation any more than you could prove to them that the sun was white! And they won't believe it until they see this.

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX

JULY 6.—"Tell me your name, Little Girl," said the woman who had rolled out such expressions as "the fundamental principles of liberty" as naturally as an entirely different type of woman rolls out the words "darlingest" and "cute," showing to which class she belonged.

Mamette looked at me. I nodded my head. Then, to my surprise, the child told her real name—my name, and the name I was trying to keep secret.

"Blake," I hastily added. "Blake," she repeated after me.

The visitor looked grimly satisfied. Her suspicions were confirmed:

"You are Manette B——, the little heiress. You are not Manette Blake at all, and if you will come with me I will take you to your guardian. If you, tarsing to me, "interfere, I will have you arrested."

I laughed. "I hope," I said, putting fresh bait on my hook, and casting it out into the water, "that I will live long enough to see your sex in power. You are so inconsequential, so altogether unreasoning, and so cocksure that you are right, that we will no longer be forced to turn to the joke books for amusement. The Congressional Records, in that glorious period, will cause a laugh to ring around the world.

"When the women are in power," she retorted, "idlers like you who go around insulting women will be flogged."

This was growing interesting. "I am not idle," I replied. "I am fishing. I have been fishing for three hours and haven't had a bite. That indicates persistence, steadfastness of purpose and ambition that will not be discouraged. As for being insulting—"

A BLUFF CALLED

I turned and looked her square in the face. "I don't see," I said slowly, and as if giving it deep thought, "why you used that word. To insult you I should have to regard you or your intentions seriously. Believe me, madame, I had not done that."

I drew my line carefully in and packed up my box of fishing tackle. "Come, Manette," I said to the child, "let us go and be arrested. Are you ready?" turning to the very red-faced woman who stood beside me.

"If you will walk with us as far as the cottage I will get a horse, or do you prefer to have the child ride with me and have me led to your horse's tail and dragged as captives were in the olden times?"

It had called her bluff. "I want nothing," in anger, "but to see that child restored to its guardian."

"Then rest easy," I replied, taking off my hat and bowing. "She is with her guardian now."

"If you are Mr. Max"—she began, and could say no more, for she realized what a spectacle she had made of herself.

I bowed again and turned away. "A moment later she came running after me. "I hope," she stammered, "that you will forgive me, and your looks—"

I cut her short with a bow, and, picking Manette up in my arms, turned on to a narrow wooded path, and was soon out of sight.

"She is the kind of woman," I mused, "that thinks that to be a man is prima facie evidence of guilt. And the trouble in her number is increasing."

A NEW SPOT

July 16—Manette and I have found a new picnic spot, and for several days we had eluded the interloper, but on the fourth day I found her sitting on the porch when we got home. She had come, she said, to borrow Manette to take part in a tableaux to be given for the cause. "She would make," she said, "such a pretty little Goddess of Liberty. Besides, I have arrayed a costume for her good. She needs a little civilization." That made me smile. "Civilization," of the brand found at Summer resorts, consists in sitting around on hotel verandas, comparing surgical operations and crochet patterns, and branding as "bold" and "scheming" the woman who violates the convention of the only man at the place. I could imagine Manette being pressed around by the crochet cusps who would speculate on the price of her clothes, her uncle's wealth, and the secret fortune, and her childish frankness the key to my family secrets.

I refused. "The child," I explained, "is dearer to me than the Cause. She is in bed by eight every night and has never been permitted to stay up late and grow feverish and excited taking part like a manikin in some foolish show. I know that mothers let their children do it, but I am not a mother. I am only a man."

"And the rudest man that ever lived," she retorted, striding out to get on her horse.

I did not offer to assist her. I never have. It would be inconsistent for her to accept.

July 28—I am writing this while lying in bed, and somewhere in the room, I don't know where, for I can't easily turn my head to see, there is a trained nurse.

I do not know how she got here nor when. All I know is that her attentions are very grateful to me, and that there have been days when I seemed to be slipping away from every one into nowhere, and only the firm, cool touch of her hand held me.

I think I was conscious of her hand I think I was conscious of her hand and its helpfulness and soothing magic for days before I opened my eyes wide enough to look her in the face. Even now I do not know what she looks like, and am not interested. I lie for hours with my eyes closed, asking nothing more in life than that a pair of very strong hands, white and soft and gentle, be there to turn my head when the pain of one position is too great, to smooth my pillow, and one day I dimly recall in my agony that they softly stroked my head, and I heard a voice somewhere murmur, "Poor boy, poor boy!"

July 29—Richards is here. I do not know when she came. I only know that every few hours she comes from some remote place—the next room is points in my favor—mount condition—and helps me to move me to an easier position, and I toss with her coming all concern for Manette has left me.

An Unexpected Pleasure

"I don't like that disagreeable Mrs. Parker."

"I thought she was very pleasant. What's happened?"

"We lunched together in town today. She said she'd pay, and, of course, I mumbled, 'Let me'—and she said, 'Very well.'"

The Mistakes of Jennie

BY HAL COFFMAN

Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a City Girl

"How dare you, you beast!"

CHAPTER 22.

THE new place where Jennie worked was one of those dingy offices you often see and wonder what the inhabitant does to make a living.

The man Jennie worked for did a little of everything from selling worthless mining stock to being an "ambulance chaser"—or commonly known as a shyster lawyer.

Jennie didn't seem to have much work to do and often wondered why the man hired her at all. But after she had been there a few days she began to understand the reason. The man hardly ever took his eyes off her. Even when Jennie would be copying something on the typewriter, if she happened to look up suddenly she found the man always intently staring at her.

The restless movement of forty pair of feet were all that disturbed the solemn hush when President Appleton wiped his brow and waved his hand in token that he was ready to speak.

"The thought I will give you to take home today," he began, the weight of a sad experience giving gravity to his voice, "is that none of you must take your mothers literally.

"I am seven, and while I believe that I have reached an age of dignity and wisdom, my mother does not always agree with me."

A groan swept the house that caused the sleeping delegates to waken and cry to go home.

"Overcome with pain recently," he resumed, "at the age I received from my sister when I used her oil paints in decorating my dog, I broke into tears.

"'Don't cry,' said my mother. 'Be a man!'

"Be a man!' It sounded good to me, and I resolved to be one.

"That evening I watched my father closely, and the next day I tried to 'be a man.' I grumbled about my breakfast, I picked up the morning paper and scattered it all over the house; I collected father's cigar stumps and left one on the piano, two in the fern dish, three on the dresser, and four, with ashes and matches on the dining-room tablecloth. I threw one of my slippers under the bed and hung the other on the bathroom door knob; I hung ties on everything, from the pictures in the parlor to the hall chandelier; I threw the contents of the top chiffonier drawer on the floor, and was swearing about my collar button, when my mother grabbed me.

"'I'm trying to 'be a man!' I cried when she grabbed me. 'You told me to be a man! I waited when she began to punish me.

"'Brother and sister delegates, my appeal was in vain!'

"Then he turned and walked stiffly and painfully from the platform. He hadn't sat down during the entire session.

"Whenever he had anything to explain to her he would lean over her chair a great deal closer than necessary and accidentally—QUITE accidentally lay his hand on her shoulder. Jennie began to notice these things and would always try to keep the table or a chair between them when he was in the office.

One day he came in and Jennie smelled liquor very strong about him, and before she realized it he had her in his arms trying to kiss her. Jennie struggled with all her might and finally dodged around the table out of his reach. "How dare you —you BEAST!" exclaimed Jennie.

"Tain's a'right," said the man, "the other girls that worked here before didn't mind it when I kissed 'em."

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

WHEN President Chauncey Devere Appleton ascended the platform to preside at the 149th convening of the Children's Congress, called in session extraordinary, he did not take a seat in the president's chair, as was his custom, but remained standing in rather a constrained, unnatural attitude.

The secretary read the report of the previous meeting; the treasurer reported three pennis, a marble and a gumdrop in the treasury; Tommy Nickles, age three, sang "Oh, I'm a Pirate Brave," breaking down on the second verse in stage fright; Leonidas Smith, when called for an opening prayer, could think of nothing but "Now I Lay Me," and repeated that; and through it all the president remained standing.

The sniffing of three sleepy children; the whispered scoldings given them by older sisters; the wails of one little girl who dropped her doll and broke it, and

For over fifteen years Grape-Nuts, the pioneer health cereal, has had no equal either in flavour or nutrition.

Thousands of families use it regularly because

Grape-Nuts

has qualities which make it the ideal food—

Delicious Flavour, Rich Nourishment, Quick Preparation, and withal, easily digested.

Grape-Nuts and cream, in place of heavy, indigestible food, helps to make one cooler and more comfortable on hot days; and builds body and brain in a way that gives zest and energy.

"There's a Reason" for Grape-Nuts

Sold by Grocers everywhere.

STRONG WORDS.

From a Doctor with 40 Years' Experience.

"In my 40 years' experience as a teacher and practitioner along hygiene lines" says a Calif. physician, "I have never found a food to compare with Grape-Nuts for the benefit of the general health of all classes of people.

"I have recommended Grape-Nuts for a number of years to patients with the greatest success, and every year's experience makes me more enthusiastic regarding its use.

"I make it a rule to always recommend Grape-Nuts, and Postum in place of Coffee, when giving my patients instructions as to diet, for I know both Grape-Nuts and Postum can be digested by anyone.

"As for myself, when engaged in much mental work my diet twice a day consists of Grape-Nuts and rich cream. I find it just the thing to build up and keep the brain in good working order.

"In addition, Grape-Nuts always keeps the digestive organs in a perfect, healthy tone." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Strong endorsements like the above from physicians all over the country have stamped Grape-Nuts the most scientific food in the world.

LATEST FROM TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

The improvement in stocks which began yesterday afternoon held over this morning, markets opening firm and with the price tendency upward. It did not take much buying to cause an advance, which was significant as to the technical situation. There was some demand for American stocks in Europe. The crop scare is less acute.

Boston trading was quiet at the start, but the tone was good. When the morning was half over Lakes were higher, Calumet & Hecla had advanced 4, Tamarack 1¼, Isle Royale ¾ and Mohawk ½. Mining issues ranged higher as a class.

New York ruled fractionally higher and first hour trading totalled nearly 1,120,000 shares. Harrimans were a little higher, as were Reading, Lehigh Valley, Steel, American Can and Erie. Coppers were strong. Amalgamated and Utah Copper showing ¼ gain, while American Smelting had advanced 1⅛. Canadian Pacific was wink, being 1⅜ lower. It had been irregular in London.

New York Opened Firm.

There was a firm tone to stocks when the New York market opened, there being better sentiment towards Americans in London, although buying was slight in that when business was resumed after the bank holiday. Orders had accumulated during the latter and reports concerning the Balkan situation were encouraging.

Crop reports were strengthening factors in New York, particularly what was heard about the weather in the corn belt. At the opening St. Paul showed the best gain, advancing 1⅜. Among the other gains were Amalgamated, ⅝; Utah Copper, ¼; Steel common, ⅜; Steel preferred, ½; Union Pacific, ½; Southern Pacific, ½; Rock Island, ⅛; Reading, ⅝; Northern Pacific, ⅝; Missouri Pacific, ⅛; Lehigh Valley, ⅜; Great Northern preferred, ⅛; Erie, ⅛; Erie first preferred, ¼, and Bethlehem Steel, ⅛. After half an hour some profit taking developed, but it was overwhelmed by buying.

The curb was steady.

Must Reduce Express Rates.

It is estimated that express companies will lose $26,000,000 a year in revenue through the reduction in their rates ordered by the Interstate Commerce commission. They will be forced into active competition with the parcel post after October 15. The reduction ranges from 10 to 60 per cent., and transportation of food stuffs and packages which weigh less than fifty pounds will be cheapened for the public.

"The most important changes prescribed by the order," it is said, "is by the way of modification of the present graduated scale of rates. One hundred pound rates for short distances either have been left unchanged or slightly modified; for longer distances they have been lowered; for fifty pounds or less all rates have been practically reduced. For packages more than four pounds going more than 200 miles and less than 2,000 the new express rates are generally lower than the parcel post rates; for more than 3,000 miles the rates are practically the same."

May Appeal to Courts.

There is expectation that express companies will appeal to courts against the decision, and officials of the carriers said it would be impossible to comply with the order by October 15. They complain that their clerks cannot compile the new rates by that time, and at the least it is believed they should be granted six months for time extension. When the news of the Interstate Commerce Commission's action reached Wall Street there was a slump in express company shares. American Express declined 12%, and United States 1 point, while Wells Fargo was unchanged.

D. I. Roberts, president of the United States Express, said:

"Without considering the equity of the rates it will be an impossibility for our rate clerks to compile the new tariffs by October 15. Our attorneys will have to ask an extension of time, because there are 6500,000 base rates on which new tariffs will have to be made. It will probably take six months before the rates can be compiled, sent to the printer, corrected, printed again and sent out to all parts of the country. We have to be certain about rate, because it is like a row of bricks, hit the first one and the row goes down.

"Since inauguration of the parcel post we have directed our energy in the direction of efficiency, our business has been holding up fairly well, but any great loss of the small packages our gross is not as large.

"In losing the small package business we were not able to curtail our expenses, because the number of wagons we now have could easily take care of that business lost."

Senator Tillman Flouts New York.

Senator Tillman of South Carolina has flouted New York again, something which he has been in the habit of doing for many years. In a letter to a Brooklyn man he says:

New Yorkers are the most egotistical asses I have ever seen or heard of. Amalgamated Copper and stars revolve around New York and you alone are entitled to any consideration. You forget that the farmers of the United States grow the largest crops which form the basis of investment which makes New York the imperial city it is.

New York under the Republicans has been the favored seat of the money power. Panic bankers have manipulated and managed the United States Treasury in Washington with loans and millions of dollars of deposits for their own benefit and profit without interest, and when the October, 1907, panic was finally created as a scare—by J. Pierpont Morgan for a purpose, and the business of the country was paralyzed because of the lack of money to do business with, J. Pierpont Morgan got forty or fifty millions of dollars by the Treasury depositing it with his banks and there it lays in New York, extensively as his own, lending it to men who were threatened with bankruptcy.

Calls Crop Fund Conference.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, who is going to deposit from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 of government money in Southern and Western banks to facilitate crop moving and to make those sections more independent of Eastern bankers in the handling of harvests, has invited the presidents of the Clearing House Associations of fifty-eight cities in the West, South and on the Pacific Coast to confer with him in Washington on Thursday next and his following day. He says he wants to discuss arrangements for depositing the government money.

What the Secretary has proposed is as popular in the West and South as it is unpopular in New York. The money is to be returned to the United States Treasury, it is stipulated, as soon as crops are moved. There is admittedly a trying to prevent the inflation which some Eastern bankers have said might be the result.

London Copper Quotations.

After a three-day holiday the London copper warrants market opened strong, spot and futures each being 30s. higher.

There have been no inquiries for metal this week on this side of the ocean to indicate that domestic buying is going to continue for a time longer. Selling is going on here, but the week firm this morning at 15⅛ cents a pound, less than Europe would have been paying. The demand from that quarter is said to have slackened.

Chino Copper Company produced 4,831,185 pounds in July, against 3,876,532 pounds in June and 3,100,000 pounds in July, 1912.

Financial News in Brief.

Steel orders are now coming in, it is estimated, at the rate of about 60 per cent. of shipments.

Within a month railroads have bought about 100,000 tons of rails, 2,850 cars and 80 locomotives.

Weakness of Canadian Pacific in Europe is attributed there to unloading in Montreal.

Secretary Air Lane for the fiscal year increased total operating revenue $782,417 and net $1,028,500 over 1912. Surplus, which increased $600,000 over last year, is equal to 7½ per cent. on the preferred stock outstanding, compared with 3% per cent. in 1912.

U. S. PROBE OF NEW HAVEN TO BE DROPPED?

The reported federal inquiry into the New Haven railroad was subject of much inquiry in Boston itself today. The question was: "Is the New Haven to be given a chance, since its reorganization, to make good, or is the government proposing to be pushed right along?"

This speculation was been rife since the departure from Boston of T. W. Gregory and J. C. Adkins, special government agents, following their conference here with Attorney-General James C. McReynolds Saturday.

Frederick J. Macleod, chairman of the Massachusetts Public Service Commission, was quoted as saying that it seemed fair to give the New Haven a chance to see if it would follow the recommendations of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

But today Chairman Macleod denied that he, personally, or the Public Service Commission, as a body, had expressed any opinion on the action of the Federal authorities in the New Haven case.

Ex-Manager Brown, Cunard Line, Dead

Was Long Identified with Boston Shipping Interests.

Vernon H. Brown, former New York manager of the Cunard Steamship Line, died at his residence there today, following a long illness. Mr. Brown was identified with shipping interests there and in Boston.

In 1840 he entered the firm of Sampson & Tappan here, the owners of a fleet of clipper ships. When he came of age he was taken into partnership in his father's firm and the concern became known as Vernon Brown & Co.

In 1880 he became connected with the Cunard Line and for years was general agent for this line in this country. In 1909 he retired. Charles Sumner took his place. He leaves five sons and two daughters.

Urges Seizure of Detroit Trolleys

DETROIT, Aug. 5.—Following notification by the Detroit United Railways that, rather than accept three-cent fares, the street cars running on city streets will be stopped, Mayor Marx today urged the Common Council to direct the city treasurer to seize the railway property for non-payment of back taxes, amounting to nearly $500,000.

Lady Sackville's Daughter to Wed

Bride-to-Be Will Succeed to Vast Scott Fortune.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The Honorable Victoria Mary Sackville-West, whose engagement to Harold Nicholson, an attache of the British embassy at Constantinople, has been announced, is the daughter of Lady Sackville, who recently won a clever title to the vast fortune of Sir John Murray Scott.

Lady Sackville-West is the only child of Lord and Lady Sackville and she will succeed to the Scott fortune.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

There are prospects of an automobile race meet at Readville track in the near future with some of the big stars as contestants. Robert N. Larrell, who has conducted motor car racing in every section of the country, is the man behind the project. He has in hand a match race of 100 miles between "Wild Bob" Burman, Jack Leslin in a Stutz and a French pilot driving a Peugot car. Mr. Farrell is now in town making arrangements for the race which will probably come off Labor Day.

A number of central station representatives of New England are planning to go over the road in automobiles to Burlington, Vt., to attend the convention of the New England section of the National Electric Light Association, which takes place on September 17, 18 and 19. The roads throughout New England are unsurpassed by those in any other section of the country and Vermont at this season of the year is at the best of its grandeur, while a full moon which is promised for the fifteenth of the month will add to the beauty and convenience of the trip.

Word has been received from Burlington that there are available in the city adequate garage facilities for the accommodation of over 400 cars, so that a tour to Burlington and return during convention week promises to be the sort of recreation that will be enjoyed by many.

* * *

As an indication of the whole-hearted manner in which officials of the two automobile manufacturing concerns affected are tying up with the desire of the J. I. Handley Co. of Indianapolis, recently organized to distribute Marion and American automobiles, comes the announcement that M. D. MacNab, vice-president of the Marion Motor Car Company, will hereafter make his headquarters in Chicago directing the affairs of the J. I. Handley Co. in the central States. The change will in no way affect Mr. MacNab's connection with the Marion Motor Company. He will retain the vice-presidency of that concern and will continue to be a power in its affairs as he has for the year he went to Indianapolis. His moving to Chicago is simply indentifive of the progressive policies which will attend the business existence of the J. I. Handley Co.

Announces Cholera Serum.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—Dr. Pierre Roux, director of the Pasteur Institute, has announced his discovery of an anti-cholera serum.

BIG CANADIAN LINE MAY SEEK BOSTON ROUTE

Efforts being made by the Canadian Northern Railway to establish a terminal at Portland, Me., are considered in railroad circles today to be preliminary to bringing the line through to Boston, a scheme that would provide this port with a big export business from a rich grain country in the Northwest.

A company has already obtained a charter to construct a railroad from Portland to South Portland, and to erect wharves, terminal facilities may be needed there. The Canadian line may take over this company.

A prominent Maine Central official said today he believed his company would welcome a trackage agreement with the Canadian Northern.

Bankers to Confer with the Treasury

McAdoo Asks Opinions on $50,000,000 Government Deposits.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Bankers from fifty-seven large cities in the agricultural districts of the South, Middle West and Pacific coast, have been invited by Secretary McAdoo to confer with the treasury department regarding the distribution of $50,000,000 funds to be deposited in banks of these sections by the government.

The three conferences will be held to discuss the marketing and movement of the crops which the government hopes to facilitate by its move.

Hawthorne Uneasy Over Parole Delay

Those Who Wish to Enter the American's Great Picture Puzzle Contest

Should do so NOW

155 Cash Prizes Absolutely Free

Cast your eyes ahead and count twenty-four. In twenty-four days the American's great Picture Puzzle Contest comes to an end, and there will be a good many contestants wondering how near they have come to winning a prize.

There have been inquiries made about the number of sets each contestant is allowed to turn in.

In case this has not been made clear, let us repeat that any one contestant is limited to three sets of solutions. Moreover, each set will be judged on its merits, and not more than one prize will be awarded to any one person or member of a family; of course, the best of the three sets will be taken as representing the contestant's work.

Now, suppose some contestant sends in only one set of solutions and that set is as correct as the best of the three sets of another contestant. Then the decision will be made on the basis of punctuation, spelling and neatness.

That is to say, there is no prejudice against the contestant who sends three sets in favor of the contestant who sends in one.

To show that some people are willing to risk a little effort and time even with the contest so near to its end, let us cite the instance of a late-comer. This contestant had not happened to hear of the contest, and she inquired at the office of the Contest Dept. how many more puzzle pictures were to be printed. When she was told that twenty-four more would complete the set, she promptly entered the contest, secured the back copies of the puzzle pictures, bought a guide and announced that she would be in the race to stay.

This is the right spirit, and there are probably hundreds of men, women and children who would be glad to emulate this example.

You want to think of that $1,000 in gold looming up as the capital prize, and of that $800 in gold, the second prize, and of that $500, the third prize.

It is safe to say that every contestant would very proudly put any of these sums in their bank accounts. The prizes are waiting, and the road to win them is no harder for one than for another.

To those not fortunate enough to win one of these first three awards, look at the other cash prizes offered:

The Fourth Prize Will Be $250 Cash.
The Fifth Prize Will Be $150 Cash.
The Sixth Prize Will Be $125 Cash.

Then there are 149 other cash prizes.

Send for the back puzzle pictures you have missed. They may be obtained at the regular rates of the American, that is, one cent for each daily picture and five cents for each Sunday picture. There is no extra charge for postage.

The guide, which has been such a help to all in the race, is furnished at twenty-five cents, or five cents more if sent by mail.

Seize your opportunity while it is knocking at your door.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX WRITES OF "THE WOMAN THOU GAVEST ME," BY HALL CAINE

The Brilliant American Poetess Analyzes the Tragedy of the Woman Whose Child Had No Father, the Horror of Her Loveless Marriage and the Great Problem of This Day

HALL CAINE'S latest work of fiction, "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," is a striking illustration of the change which has taken place in the world of literature during the last score of years.

For frank realism and courageous attacks upon time-worn traditions, it takes the lead of all other books written by all other authors.

The heroine of this novel is a young English girl, reared by an angelic mother and a traditionally brutal British father.

The father is a self-made man, who attains great wealth, and who marries his daughter to a debauched man of title.

The girl's feelings and ideas are not taken into consideration in the least. Neither has she been instructed regarding the meaning of marriage. The death of her mother when she was a mere child deprived her of the one tender tie, and left her with only the companionship of disagreeable relatives or paid attendants.

* * *

From the hour of her marriage the trials and problems of life begin to present themselves to this young girl. With the first approach of the husband as a lover, all her womanly instincts arise in revolt and the bride refuses to become a wife.

Father, aunt, and clergymen are called into consultation, to small avail. Afraid as the girl is of her father, she is still more terrified at the thought of giving herself to her husband.

She insists upon returning home to her father, but is finally prevailed upon to go away with the husband, if he will leave her undisturbed until he can win her affections.

To this situation the husband consents, wishing to avoid a public scandal. However, his method of winning his bride's affections is not a successful one. Intemperance and vulgarity are among his characteristics and the young wife finds herself growing more and more disgusted with him, daily.

Then comes the designing adventuress, in the guise of an old school friend and relative, who enters the home and becomes the mistress of the husband.

Bad as the man is, by nature and habit, one cannot help feeling that his position in his own home was a sorry one, and his affiliation with a woman of his own type does not seem at all surprising.

However, it ends all possibility of his ever winning the heart of his wife. Just at this moment the ideal man enters upon the scene and new complications arise.

Heart, soul, brain and body awaken simultaneously in the young wife, and it is quite naturally a blow to the husband's pride and to his self-conceit when he discovers that the chaste Diana, who has refused her husband's kiss, is an expectant mother.

The wife runs away, alone, and goes to London, where her child is born, and where, in the present phase of the story now running in Hearst's Magazine, she is facing poverty and despair in her efforts to support herself and child.

* * *

We must remember that she was a very young and perfectly ignorant girl, knowing nothing of life, of the world, or of human nature, when she was plunged into all these distressing situations. All her instincts were high and fine, yet through the curious complications of her destiny, she became the mother of a child of a man she loved while married to a man she loathed.

Mighty problems face her in this situation.

Everywhere she sees women respected by society and religious institutions, who are mothers of undesired children of detested men, simply because they are married to them.

Everywhere she sees women despised and shunned because they have brought forth children with love only to legitimatize birth.

Her young mind is torn and tortured with all the great problems suggested by these experiences. Meantime, the lover she believes to be dead is sailing on the high seas searching for strange goals and wholly unconscious of all that has happened to the woman of his heart.

Besides these two central figures are several other very interesting characters; one a beautiful young woman who elopes with a clergyman connected with the school where this young girl was educated. In the midst of her great distress, in her efforts to make a living for her child, she comes upon them in the slums of London; the clergyman dying and the woman selling herself, soul and body, to supply him with the necessities of life.

Just how Mr. Caine is going to deal with all these characters eventually is a question to all readers of his remarkable novel.

No amount of brilliant writing and no amount of realistic pen pictures can change to any marked degree the situation of a woman who becomes a mother without the sanction of the law.

Birth needs, first and foremost, both the legitimate call of love and the sanction of marriage to make it ideal and beautiful.

When either element is lacking the child is not well-born in the fullest meaning of that word.

Physically, mentally and morally the child may be perfectly equipped to meet the demands of life, with only love as a dower from both parents; but we live in a world which has been obliged to make social laws to protect its social rights; and where there is a flaw in the birth certificate of a child, in this respect, it is sure to cause suffering and trouble sooner or later for all concerned.

But Mr. Caine's story will set people to thinking along broader and kinder lines regarding these topics.

It presents great subjects for the mature deliberation of all classes and the followers of all creeds. The methods of public charitable institutions toward erring women are fully illustrated in this novel, and will no doubt lead to much discussion and many protests. Read the great story, "The Woman Thou Gavest Me."

Hall Caine's extraordinary novel, "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," may be begun in the number of Hearst's Magazine now on the newsstands.

The Mexican View

By MINNA IRVING.

IN Mexico, not long ago,
We used to bait the bull,
With much be-ribboned little darts
We stuck his carcass full.
But now we have a grander sport—
The gringo is our game;
Such loads of fun we have with him,
It makes the bull-fight tame.

We take the bold American
And hit him on the head,
Or slice him up in little strips,
Or pepper him with lead,
Or shut him in a dungeon cell,
Pretend to set him free,
Then stab him neatly in the back,
Or hang him from a tree.

The Yankee navy loafs around,
Their capitans talk big,
But pooh! These gringoes only have
The spirit of a pig.
Si, Senor, they're afraid of us,
No matter what they say.
Our cochero could snap his whip,
And they would run away.

HAVE YOU NOTICED THAT

The girl who marries to be supported is doing quite a bit to support herself?

There are girls who love to tempt men and then to shudder in horror at masculine susceptibility.

Some girls wear low shoes just as soon as the bargain sales in silk hosiery begin?

The girls who scream when kissed are their own best little press agents?

There are numerous girls who take a whole afternoon to dress for a dance and then have nothing to show for it?

The most "babbling brook" conversationalist woman you know may be willing to listen when money talks?

If there is one eligible bachelor in the community, a great deal of feminine time will be given over to the discussion: "Has he no morals—or no luck?"

Which brings us to the consideration of—

Look at the Picture Below, Then Look at Yourself

You Can Find in This Picture More Information About "How to Succeed" Than Carnegie or Rockefeller Could Give You in a Two Hours' Talk.

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

Work, hurry, plan, achieve—while the others rest.

That is the big secret of success.

The turtle won the race against the hare in the fable, because the turtle walked ALL THE TIME.

He could not run very fast, but HE KNEW ENOUGH NOT TO LIE DOWN AND GO TO SLEEP.

Take a lesson from that turtle. Take a lesson from this picture.

Your competitors are asleep on the grass.

They are thinking that it is too hot to work. They are pitying themselves. They will have more cause to pity themselves later for having pitied themselves so much NOW.

Don't envy the man who is paddling a canoe and telling some young person with a high color what wonderful things he is going to do NEXT WINTER.

Let him paddle his canoe and talk about himself.

YOU WORK NOW.

Lucky the man who works in August, lucky the man who is found by the hottest sun's rays ATTENDING TO BUSINESS.

When you are racing side by side with others, and when all are running, you cannot do more than keep even.

Now, while others rest, is your chance to get ahead. Take it.

Don't pick this up and say to yourself that it is a rather nice picture, and put it down again. LOOK at it. study it.

THEN LOOK AT YOURSELF.

Ask yourself, and don't deceive yourself in the answer, whether you are the man WALKING in this picture, or whether you are one of those figures lying asleep on the grass.

The answer to that question will answer your question as to what your probable position will be in the world a few years from now.

There is a better sermon on success in this picture by Tad than in all the nice interviews given out by Mr. Rockefeller telling how he saved his first dollar, or by Mr. Carnegie saying what a wonderful thing it is to give away libraries WITH NO BOOKS IN THE LIBRARIES.

July is gone. If you wasted that month, don't waste more time now on regret. Start off in the right way in August. WALK fast. WORK hard. THINK for yourself. look ahead.

Remember that no man ever hurt himself with too much work.

IT'S WHAT YOU DO BETWEEN WORKING HOURS THAT HURTS YOU.

Remember, also, that no man cheats his employer. You can only cheat yourself by doing a thing less well than you know how to do it.

And if you really try, good luck to you, for the man WHO REALLY TRIES doesn't fail.

The Time to Get Ahead Is Now

The man who travels and works in these hot and lazy days, while others rest and think it over, is the man that WILL WIN.

Young men that have ambition, and old men, too, CAN GET SUCH A START BY DOING THE RIGHT KIND OF WORK NOW THAT THE OTHERS RESTING AND THINKING HOW HOT IT IS WILL NEVER CATCH YOU. August, September, October—they are the months of the winning workingman. (See Editorial).

THE FAILURE

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

OH, HO! you little Failure, with the funny, wrinkling nose,
You well may lie there and pretend to count your shell-pink toes.
You well may seem to hear with scorn the other babies' jeers
At words—oh, cruel, cutting words—that ought to burn you ears.
What right have you to glug and coo with infantile content
When all the Judge has given you is sixty-five per cent.

YOUR folded neck is far too fat, your dimples much too deep,
Your legs look sadly purgy when you feebly try to creep;
Your eyes are not elliptical, they're just big, round, blue dots.
The filmy fuzz you think is hair is all worn off in spots.
And yet you smiled and even laughed, when the committee came
To list your imperfections—have you got no sense of shame?

YOU ought to know how much you lack in a perfect baby's points,
You ought to blush when you behold your foolish, wabbly joints.
You ought to count your chalky teeth—look out, they're sharp and rough—
And realize that for your age you haven't half enough.
And yet you jab what few you have with that red, curious tongue,
And do not seem to care at all—so callous! And so young!

A FAILURE! Sixty-five per cent! And yet your chubby arms
You reach out to your mother, just as if your baby charms
Still had the power to call her, as they did when, wan and pale,
She first beheld your tiny form—a or dreamed that you would Fail!
Well, who knows but you may be right? Perhaps in her dim eyes
You're just as perfect as you were before you lost the Prize!

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

SMOKE-PROOF STAIRWAYS

Editor Boston AMERICAN.

Dear Sir—The problem of smoke proof stairways (towers) was solved and fully and completely solved years ago. Such towers for fire escapes are in very common use in Germany and to some extent in other European countries.

In the United States the device is generally known as the Philadelphia tower, from having first come into use in that city. It is provided for in the building codes of Philadelphia, New York and other progressive cities (NOT Boston) and is a requisite to a considerable degree in New York, but of course not required in those buildings erected before it was read into the code. It is very fully described in all recent books on fire protection and detailed specifications may be found in several building codes, the proceedings of the National Fire Protection Association and in the tenement House Act for Cities adopted at the 1912-13 legislative session of Massachusetts.

That the iron balcony fire escape is frequently a death trap is undeniable, but that quality is not an universally inherent one. Frequently this form of escape is the only available one and in such case proper protection of the windows it passes by usually sufficient to greatly modify if not cure its chief defect. But unfortunately this important feature is not included in the present Boston code, and forms one of the many glaring defects of that law.
